MISCELLANEOUS.

FAILURE OF WIFE STONS.—A gentleman, who had carefully trained up his servant in the way he should go, so that when his wife was present he might not depart from it, sent him with a box ticket for the theatre to the house of a young lady. The servant returned when the gentleman and his wife were at dinner. He had, of course, been told in giving answers to certain kinds of messages, to substitute the masculine for the feminine pronoun in speaking of the lady. "Did you see him?" said the gentleman, giving him the cue. "Yes, sir," replied the servant. "He said he'd go with a great deal of pleasure, and that he'd wait for you, sir." "What was he doing?" asked the wife, carelessly. "He was putting on his bonnet," was the reply. It is said that there was "fat in the fire" immediately.

"My dear lady, your daughter is lovely," said a flatterer, "a perfect little pearl." "And pray, sir, what am I?" "Oh, you are the mother of pearl!" Quill says, when he sees kisses between women, it reminds him of two handsome unmatched gloves—charming things with their proper mates, but good for nothing that way.

"Now look'er, Charlie, Jim mout be an honest nigger, and then again he mount; but if I was a chickin, and knowed he was about the yard, I tell yer wot, nigger, I'd roost high, I would."

"Say, Cæsar Augustus, why am your legs like an organ grinder?" "Don't know, Mr. Sugarloaf—why is they?" "Cause they carry a monkey about the streets." A brick grazed the head of Mr. Sugarloaf just as his ears disappeared round the corner of a street.

A gentleman was called upon to apologise for words uttered in wine. "I beg pardon," said he, "I did not mean to say what I did; but I've had the misfortune to lose some of my front teeth, and words get out every now and then without my knowledge."

A lady one day wrote to her husband the following letter, which may be quoted as a model in its way. "I write to you because I have nothing to do; I end because I have nothing to say."

An old bachelor probably wrote the following:—"Twixt women and wine, man's lot is to smart; 'tis wine makes his head ache, and women his heart."

A PLEASANT YOKEFELLOW.—"My yoke is easy, and my burden is light," is the young man said, when his sweetheart was sitting on his lap, with her arms round his neck.

A correspondent offers his services as a letterwriter, and warrants his epistles to "start a parent's tear, stir the expiring embers of waning affection, and awaken the full ecstasy of a lover's heart."

If we may believe a correspondent of the Times, the gold diggings of Nova Scotia and the oil wells of the United States and Canada are likely to be eclipsed as a source of wealth by the cod bank of Rockall. Millions of money are to be picked up from the ocean at that lonely spot in the North Atlantic. Only four adventurous fishing smacks have found their way there as yet, but they have brought back to the Orkney Islands cargoes of cod of a fabulous value, and stories which "seem more like Sinbad the Sailor than proved facts by successful fishermen." Of course the commination will attract the notice of naturalists as well as speculative fish-mongers and oil merchants; for not only does it describe shoals of very wonderful sharks and whales, but mentions "a strange fish" which was fallen in with in large numbers.

ITALY, SWITZERLAND AND THE LOMBARD BISHOPS.—"We have announced," says the Nord, "the rupture of negotiation between the Italian government and Switzerland relative to the Lombard bishoprics. If we are well informed, the former consented to the separation of the parts of the two dioceses in question, which are on the Swiss territory on condition of sharing with Switzerland the property of that of Como, and leaving to the Confederation the task of arranging the religious question with the Holy See: As the partition agreed upon could not take place, according to the views of the cabinet of Turin, until after the final settlement of the question, the Federal Council has not accepted the condition, feeling persuaded that the Court of Rome will never lend itself to such an arrangement."

THE NATIONAL EXHIBITION AT FLORENCE.—"The building of the Palace of the Exhibition here," says a letter from Florence, "is proceeding with the utmost activity. The number of workmen at present employed amounts to 2,300. The exhibition promises to be most brilliant, for the number of exhibitors inscribed already amounts to 5,000—a very respectable figure, as the number of exhibitions at Paris was, if I mistake not, only 7,000."

The King of Sweden has scarcely reached Stockholm than the nature of his journey begins to emerge. The Kreuz Zeitung states that an offensive and defensive alliance has been concluded between Napoleon III. and the grandson of Bernadotte. The paper also announces that the details of the treaty are in the possession of the English Cabinet, and that the number of troops to be furnished by either party, in the event of a war against Germany or England, is perfectly well known.

Lord Monck, it appears is to succeed Sir Edmund Head as Governor-General of Canada. A man of fact and ability is required for the government of the Canadian provinces. All the public know of Lord Monck is, that he was once a Lord of the Treasury; but the Globe assures us that while acting in that capacity he "evincd great business capacity, and acquired general popularity."

If we may believe the Paris correspondent of the Independence Belge, the French ministry is about to send special agents into the departments for the purpose of ascertaining the state of public opinion, with a view to a dissolution of the Legislative body. The dissolution would become expedient if the French troops should evacuate Rome; and, hopeful, but perhaps credulous, politicians persist in believing, we are told, that the Emperor Napoleon will soon withdraw his army from Rome.

General Lambert, the new Lieutenant Governor of Poland, is according to the Monitor, of French extraction, and a Catholic by creed. He is said to be charged with the promulgation of some important measures which are to form the basis of the future financial and legislative autonomy of Poland.

THE PREMIER AND THE STATION MASTER.—At one of the chief stations on the Great Western Railway (says the Western Morning News) is a station master noted for self-conceit and flattery. His reverence for a person with a handle to his name is equalled only by the esteem in which he holds himself. One day he described a gentleman pacing the platform with a cigar in his mouth. Mr.—at once recoiled at the audacious offender and requested him forth with to stop smoking. The gentleman took no notice of this command, but continued his walk emitting a silvery cloud. Irritated by this disobedience, Mr.—repeated his rebuffs more peremptorily than before; but still the owner of the Havanna maintained a provoking disregard. A third time the order was repeated, accompanied with the threat that if the obstinate sinner did not obey, he would be handed over to the tender mercies of the porters. The stranger took no more heed than before; and so, at last enraged, Mr.—pulled the cigar out of the smoker's mouth and flung it away. This violent act produced no more effect than commands and threats, and the portieristic philosopher continued his walk quite serenely. Presently a carriage and four drove up—an equipage well known to Mr.—as that of the Duke of Beaufort. To his inconceivable horror the refractory smoker entered the said chariot, and drove off in style to Badminton. Mr.—asked in tremulous tones who the stranger was, and he felt ready to sink into the earth when he heard that it was Viscount Palmerston, K. O., First Lord of the Treasury. He did not hesitate to long however; he at once ordered a chaise and pair and drove off to Badminton.

Arrived there, he sent in his card, and urgently requested a private interview with Lord Palmerston. His lordship soon appeared, when Mr.—began a most abject apology for having "so grossly insulted his lordship. Had he known who his lordship was he would not have so treated his lordship for the world." The Premier heard the station-master out, then looking down upon him sternly, and with his hands in his pockets, said, "Sir, I respected you because I thought you were doing your duty like a Briton; but now I see you are nothing but a snob!" And thus ended the station-master's interview with the Premier.

Mrs. LINCOLN AND THE PRINCESS CLAUDELLE.—Mrs. Lincoln, the President's wife, is now on a visit to this city, en route for long Branch and Newport—two of the delightful maritime watering places on the Atlantic coast—and seems to enjoy life in general, and the distinctions of her fortuitous exaltation in particular, with more than ordinary ardour. Mrs. Lincoln yesterday received an introduction to the Princess Clauclle. Only the immediate attendants of both ladies were allowed in the room, and the party was hermetically closed with the key of a kid glove.—Letter from New-York in the Morning Star.
