Future prospects.

"Coming ovents east their shadows before," Thus the affair of Pavon fore-told the fate of Rosario, and wise observers pretend to read the future of this country from our present state. But, at best we can only guesa much the dram of national regeneration would require another Joseph to interest are we could lety on the terpret, ere we could rely on the chances of the issue.

The war, say some, is not over, but only commencing. One round has been fought', yet neither of the state pugilists in inclined to give in; the is changed, and the great suit of Mitre cersus Derqui will again come off. The verdict of Santa Fé must be tried by appeal to the Upper Provinces, where both parties expect to find a favorable jury. Mitre is not satisfied, since he ias scored but one count; and Derqui is obstinately bent on holding out to the last, since, with him, defeat invol-ves jeopardy. The former sees his work unfinished so long as a vestige of the old regime remains; and deems it more difficult to stop short, than it would have been never to begin. The latter regards his past defeat as a common reverse of arms, and judges that by falling back on his own ground, he will, like the Titans of old, recover fresh strength to combat the Buenos Ayrean Jupiter. The former Buenos Ayrean Jupiter. The tormer relies on the prestige of recent success to annihilate a dispirated foe. The latter expects to avail himself of the shifting tide of war, to float again his Presidential barque, now high and dry, but nowise shipwrecked. If we dry, but nowise supercecked. If we believe reports, Derqui's underlings have gained a complete victory in Tucuman and are about to seize Santiago, as compensation for Mitre's holding Rosario. This gives the Federals reason to hope that all is not lost, and that they can make another stand against the invading army. At the same time, it suffices to shew Mitre that there is yet an enemy to conquer, and that the only solution of the disputed question lies in the sword. The hos-tile fleet is not taken, fortifications are raised at Diamante; while Derqui preaches an active crusade, Urquiza holds a menacing uncertainty of at-titude, and Pascual Rosas and Virasoro are still in arms. Therefore we must have a tedious war.

Again others are of opinion that e is cortain, and at hand. The result of Pavon has been decisive, in proof of which Derqui did not hazard a second struggle by defending Rosario. Urquiza too was evidently auxiou to finish the contest one way or other, and when fortune declared against him, he wished not to prolong hosti-lities, which virtually depended on his presence, and declared a truce by returning to his estancia. The nomi Virasoro, and such other me tion of Virasoro, and such other me-sures, were but to save appearances; a show of opposition and some slight delay are the requisite preface to an arrangement. The porteto party ha-ving proved victorious have already enough to gratify vanity and give weight to their wishest the peterals have still sufficient elements to enforce equitable terms, though not, to ce equitable terms, though not, to subdue Buenos Ayres. The safety of our troops scarcely permits their pe-netrating remote provinces; the finan-cial difficulties of Parana point to a long contest as inevitable bankrupt-cy. The dispersion of the Confederate forces and inecitive of Europe proforces, and inactivity of Urquiza pre-vent Derqui from facing Mitre. The doubtful intentions of the upper pro-vinces, and proffered assistance of the ral caution us to b Captain-General caution us to be also in throwing down the gauntlet for the protection of the channelion-colored provincials, and risking the advantages once secured—Thus not only self-interest, but prudence, is mutually engaged in favor of peace, and a careful consideration of our pre-sent position would lead we to be the sent position would lead us to believe that the embryo now ripening will issue from the womb of futurity rather as a doublefaced Janus than

The Argentine Provinces

The most important and wonderful item ever published in our local press, is ever published in our local press, is the mission of Sor Ocampo on the part of Urquiza to offer Mitte his alliance. It has long been asserted that the Captain General was oppo-sed to the war, and all parties believed that the plea of sickness was sham. Yet it is quite true that he is very ill, (some say that he has suffered a second stroke of apoplexy,) and red a second stroke of apoplexy,) and we learn from Mr. Ocampo that his under jaws have so fallen that it is necessary to tie them with a handker-chief. While ready, however, to make peace, he is not unprepared in the event of hostilities. Besides entrenching Diamante, where he has moun ted cannon and drawn up his fleet under the batteries, he has removed his head-quarters from Sau José to Calá, formed a bafallion of niggers, and kept the militia of the villages yet under arms.

From Paraná we read that the resignations of Echague and Olmos, in the departments of War, and the Interior were but the prelude to muniversal dissolution of the Cabinet. The press was loud in calling for a new ministry including Victorica, Carril, and Lopez Jordan, but the goreptament made short work of it, suppressing all papers except the "Bogorepfunent made short work of it, suppressing all papers except the "Boletin Official." The Banished journals took refuge in, and around, Diamante. Calvo and Barra had taken furlough, and gone, it is supposed, to Correntes, General Galarza is about to be raised to the grade of Brigadier-General: we do not know in what page of history are read his exploits. Lopez-Jordan is gone to Parand with the view of bringing his wite and children to San José, which he deems a safer residence than the quoudens capital. the que

The President's whereabouts is not well defined. By one account he is on a second julgrimage to Cortoba, by another he is assembling forces near the city of Santa Fe. Paraná is almost deserted and unprotected by soldiery, and there is a surmise that th: seat of Government may be translated to Cyrrientes. This latter city, by the way, is said to be on the eve of revolution, but, after all we have seen of Cortobas and the northern provinces, we place no reliance on hunginary reactions.

The news from Tucunan is quite The President's whereabouts is no diastrous to Buenos Ayres, and has come unexpected. At a place called Manantiales a bloody conflict took place between the Liberal party under Governor Villafañe, and a Federal Governor Villafañe, and a Pederaj force commanded by one Col. Navarro, whom Derqui had unminated to restore Alcora in the Government of Santiage. The official account gives a complete victory to the latter, but, as they were ringing bells for their success at Pavon, it is possible the bossted conquerors came off reconsil-best. At the same time it is remarkable that even the prating of Pavon has not lighted up the revolution that we were told, was smouldering in the North.

The event of the week has been the "Mississippi's" trip to Rosario. Agitation, to use a Hibernicism, was tation, to use a Information, was growing stagonant, and an excursion ticket proved just the thing to fill a blank in stateamauship, amuse the so-ber citizens, and bring golden returns to the ship-broker. When we consider that the fare was a doubloon, and the passengers 400 in number, some idea may be formed of the propriety of the speculation. On arriving at Rosario a soirée was given on board. (which, with Capt. Harrison's accustumed kindness, was free of expense) and the lau-rel-crowned soldiers and fair dames of our city enjoyed a conviviality of which they had been some time deprived.

THE APPAIRS OF MEXICO.

The news from Mexico is the mo-The news from Mexico is the most avourable that, under the circum-stances, could have been hoped, since it announces that the Mexican gover-nment and congress, by attempting new acts of spoliation, have at length caused the representatives of France and England to break off diplomatic and England to break on appointed intercourse, preparatory, it may be as-sumed, to more vigorous measures. As the Mexican importations this year are believed to have nearly doubled these of 1860, the proportion of the duties belonging to the British cre-ditors would have gone far towards paying the interest of their claims; and paying the interest of their claims; and it is simply a question whether the robbery of these duties shall continue, or whether the British Government will order ships of war tationed at Vern Cruz to instat upon their collection. Although the annual loss to this country is 900,000°, the indifference manifested by our Pereign Office during the last three years to the personal and pecuniary outrages indiffered on British subjects has been such as to lead the Mexicaus to rely upon perfect impunity, and it is proupon perfect impunity, and it is probable that but for the determination bable that but for the determination of France not to tolerate any longer the existing state of affairs, our people would still have chanoured in vain for protection and redress. Hithorto the United States have interfered as the United States have interfered far as possible to prevent any c certed action that might place certed action that might place the republic in a position of respectability by and strongth, their avowed public having been to contrive that the nation should "drink the cup of numerby to the very dregs" until it should fall to them without a struggle. But I had no sooner thrown my shorter I had no sooner thrown, my shorter leg over him when a person came up and claimed the quadruped as his, and after much altercation my eyes were opened to the fact that I had been most egregiously taken in. It seems that it had been an ageon-horse I had bought, and as the oaver, backed by a crowd of his ragamuffin friends, affirmed in very choice diction that there could be no sale in the circumstances, I was glad to give him up and make myself scarce, satisfied to the last however that there had been a rabe, but that I, not the horse, was the le, but that I, not the horse, was the orticle sold. "Mr. Ship's occupation is gone." Oh!

Mr. Editor if you only knew the pride I took in some of the young men in Buenos Ayres you would really synaphitize with me Although I say it who shouldn't, finery of them one their success in business and love to my cut-ting and sowing exertions. If you had only seen them when they arrived in this country, you would have thought han utter impossibility that their extra-ordinacy feet would ever be taught to ship gracefully through a polks, or roy, if not in sackloth and ashes? If tra-ordinacy feet would ever be taught to a big gracefully through a polka, or their clumesy and badly attired bodies could ever be made to bend in an elegant bow. They appeared so boorish that really I do not think the y could that the numerical difference between a pair of trowsers and a pair of coats. But now befold them! Examine any one who has passed through my hands, and I shallenge you to produce a native so neat in his attire or so aristo-tratic in his bearing. But alast this Provident, Institution will ruin all. Our confiterias will be unattended— our opera houses will be full of empty benches—our promenades will be robbed of their glitter, and Mr. Snip's needle will grow nobuless. And the benches—our promenates will be nobbed of their glitter, and Mr. Ship's needle will grow pobuless. And the young ladies, what is to become of them? No more beaus—no more theates—no more halls—no more pic nies—no more what? Insiced I can only repeat the ery and say—no more.

The secuery on this side of the river is prettier than in the 'Bs. Ayres Camp. The Country is more undulating and consequently there are Moutes and Arroyes in abundance. The neeple in gener 1 are cirl, hospitable and honest. One seldom hears of a robbery or a nurder; but even here we live in dangerous times on account of the war. Reds and whites are scattered over the country; and it is as much as your throat is worth to as much as your throat is worth to to discover, that atter only the control and off again, the less chance I have of seeing sour looks. Sometimes I have lived ging that I have no right to suffer with one family for a whole week, but then I had all the rage of the establishment through my hands from Don Thingamy's poncho down to the youngest chit's footless seeks. Work of this vulgar description often brought desponding thoughts into my head, for I had been necustomed to adorn the handsomest figures in Buenos Aythe handsomest figures in Buenos Aythe and though parties have redicaled me and called me "turneoat," I quietly held they have been been the called me the profession.
