THE WEEKLY STANDARD.

"The daily Standard."

When first the Standard made its appearance, we said that it was "the representative of a new literary generation in this country."

For the first time, since Columbus discovered this continent, an English daily paper will be published in South America.

To meet the convenience of our country subscribers and suit for transmission by the mails for Europe, we will continue the weekly impression of the Standard; this edition will condense all the daily publications, and be given on Wednesday instead of the morning No. 2 to our daily subscribers.

The latest accounts from Entre Rios state that Urquiza was assembling all his available forces for a last stroke; Corrientes has promised a contingent of 8000 men, the Chambers not only rejected Mitre's proposals as inadmissible but dictated others in a laughing tone.

The Daily Standard comes out on Dec. 1st, and will be delivered every morning, before 7 o'clock. The Shipping List will be published twice a week. Advertisements inserted at the same prices as in the other daily papers, and received until 3 P. M. on previous day.

Foreign Currency. We translate the following important article from the "Revista": "Its merit will be understood on considering the subject treated of, and the numerous respectable signatures affixed."

The undersigned have read some observations in the Nacional [16 inst] on the petition of our Commercial public to Government, praying the introduction of foreign moneys as currency, and their attention is directed to the attack made by said contributor on the parties herein interested.

The writer's motives are sufficiently clear, and it requires a total ignorance of the present condition of our trade, paralyzed by heavy engagements in specie, [which are payable at the present depressed rate of currency], to doubt that the immediate consequence of introducing foreign money, which possesses more intrinsic value than even doubloons, would be, to enhance the credit of paper-money, and save our commercial body from frequent failures which result simply from the depreciation of the actual currency.

Moreover, to assert dogmatically that there is no need of gold in the market, because the Bank holds in deposit 60,000 doubloons, shows a lamentable blindness to the necessities of our commerce, to the scarcity as present felt, and to the just proposition that should exist between specie & paper-money.

Doubloons are every day disappearing faster from circulation, and let us early it will be imperative to introduce foreign money into market, or for the Government to coin gold on the measure of this kind by the Government will meet with the sympathy of our Commercial public, by reason of the salutary results that must ensue."

Our Provincial Campaign. After Pavon, one of our friends risked a prophecy that the war was not over, but only commencing. Although such prediction seemed unreasonable, it has been verified in an opposite sense, however, to our friend's forethought. Last week it was known that the tedious negotiations between Mitre and Urquiza were virtually broken off, and now we have to announce the revolution of Cordoba and battle of Santa Fe. Both these events resulted favorably for Buenos Ayres, confirming the prestige acquired by Mitre at Pavon, and dealing a more deadly blow to the expiring administration, that was even the President's flight.

On the evening of Tuesday Nov. 12, Governor Allende being gone in direction of San Luis, the populace rose on the officials left behind, and making them prisoners, declared liberty and alliance with the cause of Buenos-Ayres. Major Ochoaga headed the movement, and a Provisional Government was formed of Stes. Roman, Olmedo & Bazan. Among the captured enemies, is Clavero, the barbarous assassin of Dr. Aberastain of San Juan, who was shot on the roadside, an unarmed prisoner. It is probable he will meet the fate of his victim. There are 13 other gaucha notabilities arrested; and as a force was sent to overtake the bird of passage, Allende, he may be less fortunate than his late master Derqui. Scarcely was the despatch from Cordoba known at Rosario, when Gen. Panero with his column of 3,500 men set out for that city which is distant some 20 days march.

Almost simultaneously with the above, we hear of a signal victory gained by Gen. Flores over the last legions of the Confederate army. Mitre, as we reported some weeks back, disposed that, while the Federals were looking out for his troops in Cordoba, another division under Flores should make an irruption northwards. This expedition was chiefly composed of an undefined number of cavalry. Don Yencio's despatch, announcing his victory, is neither clear nor laconic; thus, in 25 lines of details he has forgotten to mention how, when, or where, the battle took place. He says "it is 5 1/2 A.M. and my valiant division has just gained a complete victory over Gen. Viasoro"; by this it would appear the engagement was by starlight. "The enemy lost 150 killed and 50 prisoners; we had a few wounded."

This looks as if the enemy were all summarily, who were slaughtered without our losing a man "We have taken all their arms, horses and baggage." This rather contradicts the previous assertion, that Viasoro had scarcely 200 men, who were destitute of every thing and yet the enemy (without horses) manage to escape. Col. Carralho going in pursuit. Col. Ruiz and Father Marin have been captured; the latter is sadly wounded having received three lance-thrusts and a musket ball. Notwithstanding some inconsistencies of the narration, we are not inclined to term it a canard, and feel certain, that it will not a little surprise General Urquiza.

All hopes of an accommodation with Urquiza have lost strength, and some calculate on his taking the field at once; it is, however, more probable that we shall have a series of temporizing missions, and the final attitude of the Captain-General will depend on the issue of Mitre's campaign in the upper provinces. Don Juan Ocampo, who was special commissioner, in Urquiza's first overtures to us, said, quite disgusted with his master's pretensions, and refused to be any longer, his Mercury. Yet he consented to accompany Sr. Moreno and introduce him to Mitre as Urquiza's alter ego and diplomatic stalking-horse.

The funeral of Admiral Fourmartin took place at Rosario on the 15th. The Chaplain-general, Commander J. officers of the garrison, with several clerical gentlemen went on board the day previous, and recited the service for death; the corpse was then coffin'd and waked by officers in turns, on Monday morning at 8 A. M. the 2nd bat. 1st reg. Nat. Guards was drawn up in parade with multiplied drums and draped banners to receive the cofrade. This was attended by the Minister of War, (but not by Mitre) and having reached the cemetery, the remains were deposited in a temporary vault pending their removal to Buenos Ayres. The customary salute was then given for the last time to the late commander, Col. Murciari, as senior officer, has been already named his successor.

The latest accounts from Entre Rios state that Urquiza was assembling all his available forces for a last stroke; Corrientes has promised a contingent of 8000 men, the Chambers not only rejected Mitre's proposals as inadmissible but dictated others in a laughing tone, viz: two fleets to be at once despatched, Mitre to retire to San Nicolas, a commission to be composed of one Deputy from each province, for the final pacification of the Republic. These terms leave no margin for hope of an arrangement, although they may produce a lengthened discussion.

Montevideo. There is an interesting discussion going on in the daily press about the French demand for compensation. It secures the Imperial Government proposed to indemnify their subjects for all losses sustained on condition that French imports at Montevideo should pay a reduced or nominal duty, for a certain period. This it is argued will have the effect at once to satisfy a pressing demand and increase French commerce in those waters, without a notable diminution in the state-revenue. Otherwise the Banda Oriental must disburse 10 millions or suffer a French occupation. The barque "Eva" from Havana has been placed in quarantine on suspicion of yellow fever.

A fine new clock has been fixed in the tower of Matrix church, and the citizens express themselves highly pleased with its working. The 19th being the birthday of Queen Isabella, was celebrated with due honours, a salvo was fired from the Spanish men-of-war in port, and the press complimented our Majesty on the auspicious anniversary. At first it was rumored that ex-president Derqui did not visit President Berro, and this was ascribed to the neutral policy adopted by Montevideo, but it is since known that he paid the latter a private visit of courtesy.

From the correspondence of the "Nation" we learn that Francia has 3,500 men at Diamante and that Lopez counts 4,000 in Santa Fe, but these items are doubtful.

The late gale has caused many disasters on the Brazilian coast; 4 vessels have been lost and 29 corpses picked up. The newest arrived at Montevideo Lopez has offered Urquiza men and money, for which the citizens ran joy-jells, but President Berro very properly stopped the amusement. We are promised a terrible manifestation from Derqui, not over-friendly towards the Captain-General of Sea & Land.

General Items

The expenses of Bank-clerks &c. have been fixed for the year at a trifle of 1 1/2 millions. A military serenade took place on Thursday evening in the Plaza, with fireworks &c. in honor of the Cordovan revolution. Our Chambers have not yet passed the Railway bills, the senate having an evident reluctance to sanction the projected vote of L. 750,000, as supposed to be excessive. It has been ascertained that Admiral Fourmartin died of an apoplectic stroke. Five sisters of charity have arrived from Rio Janeiro, Urquiza's college at Concepcion has been closed, 1,000 doubloons being claimed by the butcher and baker; the boys have been drafted into an infantry battalion. The Mississippi S. S. is we are happy to state, again afloat, having got off the strand yesterday morning. Capt. Hunt threw a bridge over the Caracana for the passage of the army.

Mitre's reserve of horses, not in service, is estimated at 10,000 fat animals. Reports from Cordova affirm that the Federales had completely routed Navarro, who lately conquered in Tucuman, and that Carranza had assembled some troops in Santa go to defend that province from the Federales. In the revolt of Cordova the women distinguished themselves by parading the streets, with banners: Our governor pro teo, Ocampo has responded to the provisional governor of Cordova, crossing over Derqui's flight to Montevideo. Dr. Pizarro is dying in Rosario, Dr. Varela has left the "Patria" of that city to return to the "Tribuna" of this, Dr. Ravon has likewise returned. Dr. Sarriente is auditor of the expedition to Cordova. Col. Sandes is bringing for a brush with San. Cristo and Biranchin in the frontier of Cordova. The Usarzo garrison has been augmented by the 1st & 2nd bat "North." Mitre's illness is not mentioned, so that it cannot have been more serious than a tooth-ache.

LOCAL EVENTS.

Felo de se.—On Sunday the Emma Cushing was prevented to hoist her flag reversed & half-mast high. Subsequently it was known the cook committed suicide, to escape the condition of a galley-slave.

New Consulate.—It is understood that our city diplomatists, King of His Majesty Orelle Antonio, King of Aracania has accredited a Consul General for this port. A gentleman, whose name is allied with Paraguay, is spoken of, but we are assured he cannot accept the post, having already received similar despatches from the Celestial brother of the sun and moon.

The Largest paper.—By the new arrangement of publishing a daily paper whose contents will be condensed into the Weekly Standard this paper will contain (excepting advertisements) more matter than either the Tribuna or Nacional, and thus become the largest paper, probably, in South America.

Rigolotto.—This amusing periodical, replete with Attic salt, is piquant and well-seasoned. Regarding it as a joke, and all the world a stage, it promises to become our local "Punch." Wishing it long life (since it is published in this office) we refer our friends to the last number December 2d.

Philharmonic.—The "Tribuna" states that crowds are every evening attracted to the Irish Concert to hear the Sisters of Mercy sing the Devotions called at home Mouth of May or here Mes de Maria.

Chaptor of accidents.—Mr. L. Price, pilot, dropped dead on last Thursday. The corpse of a boy who had been watering horses was washed ashore last week. The terrors found a man dead in the street, without marks of violence. An English fireman of the "Dolorcitas" threw himself overboard.

Wool.—Fine mestiza lots are selling at 80 to 85 $ per ar. Many are storing their fleeces, but, we think, with little prospect of a rise in the market.

Fire-eaters.—Don Lucio Mansilla has been made a captain; Don Hector Varela is already a Major; this shows that the Editors of the "Tribuna" can point a sword as well as a pen, and provide lenders for the costuras when required. Their quill-still is the highest feather in their caps, and their penknives on the field of glory will shine as "the star of the Legion of Honor." P. M. M. M.

Bacchanals.—Some malicious individuals have asserted that one of the French Co. in Victoria Theatre appeared on the stage in a state of intoxication. We don't believe a word of it; perhaps said actor had been looking at some persons drinking.

The Camp Justices of P. no. (FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The "Tribuna" of the 5th inst. appears astonished that the camp justices of peace wink at the infringement of certain statutes; there are 6-8 statutes in force that the justices of peace do not sometimes wink at, for the present suffice it to cite one or two to prove the truth of the statement. There is a statute in force the 7th article of which prohibits the use of the seal "as dos ordes trozadas" still such seal is used—rather a broad wink. There is another which requires that every proprietor of sheep, over a certain number, must have a boleto for each animal, many have paid in their 50's for each boleto, but many others have laughed at the legislators—a slight wink. In fact as long as the justices of peace in the camp command uncontrolled the arbitrary power they have, they may not only wink, but break every statute of the code, for it is seldom they find any one to call them to order. It requires a man of capital and a determined mind to appeal to any of their decisions, for every one is well aware of the loss of time, loss of patience and loss of money that a lawsuit incurs, of this the justices of peace are fully convinced and consequently rule their districts with little or no fear, their decisions no matter how erroneous or arbitrary are seldom or never even spoken of in the press because the interested parties are generally afraid to do so, for they will mark that by doing so, they will be worked in the black book, and if natives were likely their doom is a march to the frowns. Every one versed in the secrets of the circumlocution office know how easy it is to make a man do frontier or other military service and keep him in that service as long as it suits the offended party.

It happens to be a foreigner who offends, God help him if the evor again has occasion to see the same judge on judicial business. Even allowing the conduct of all the justices of peace in the camp to be above impeachment, their object will then be, to make as few enemies as possible and the result is that they finally decide no suit that comes before them, with a view to keep friendly with both parties. The judge hustles up the demand, camp fashion, and the plaintiff gives up the case in despair, thereby suffering frequently a serious loss, the judge by putting off and hushing up things in this way gains his point—that of creating himself no enemies, but in the mean time the camp interests are abandoned and at least half a century behind date. Every one who lives in the camp knows how difficult it is to prevent trespass, a neighbour may have a narrow strip of land, with a large quantity of mares and cattle that daily graze on your land, the instant you can gain after frequently summoning the owner, directions to turn them off, and then you dare not turn them beyond the line of your farms, for course you no sooner turn them off, than they are again in, if you have not the patience of Job, you give up the case in despair or otherwise employ men to mind your neighbours cattle, there is no partido that cannot cite a numberless instances of this kind, and of much more importance, which is at least a proof, that property has no particular owner. The legislators seem to think of the camp only when they require a new tax and the government seem to treat it as something akin to a conquered territory; for they leave it to the able mercy of a justice of peace, who if a good man, does nothing at all for, or against it, and if a bad one does all the mischief he can. The Government well knows how difficult it is to get men of independence to fill the office of justice of peace in the camp, the reason is, that these gentlemen know the responsibility attached to office, and so fill it properly, they must create many enemies; but if that responsibility was once removed then gentlemen of the highest position would fill the office with a good will. Now that responsibility could be easily removed without any additional expense to government of the partido and the interests of the camp would be much better attended to if some such plan as the following were adopted: Direct the justices of peace to hold their court days (say once a week) and on those days, hear all Civil cases with a Jury composed of three, five or more persons; they should be required to decide strictly in accordance with the Jury's verdict. This method would relieve them of their responsibility and be a great benefit to the camp indeed, for no matter how upright a judge may be, three or five men on a Jury are more likely to administer justice with more impartiality than any one man. Until something of the kind is done camp interests will be at a standstill, for the justices of peace with their present instructions are fully determined to leave everything they possibly can in statu quo. They certainly cannot be blamed for their determination, because the more strictly they adhere to it, the less enemies they create, and at the expiration of their term of office, they follow on their business in the partido without fear of being tarred & feathered or perhaps something worse; it is only a few days since an ex-justice of peace of our district received three different notices that his life was in danger and if it is the opinion of the district, that there is not a more just or upright man in the partido.

It would be only just that the inhabitants of each partido should have the nomination of their own justices. In such case five or six Juries should be elected, for the entire year, on a fixed day in the same way municipalities are elected, those Juries could serve in their turn, week or month about and in case one Jury was rejected with due cause, by either plaintiff or defendant, another Jury could be called. If the Jury was composed of only three it would perhaps be necessary to require that the verdict should be unanimous, whereas if it were composed of fire or more, a majority would never appear until the present state of the camp. There is no particle that cannot afford a certain number of intelligent men, capable of forming a jury and certainly no one would reject the office, as it would be ultimately for the benefit of their country. In all cases not purely civil the justices of peace could act alone as heretofore. Some improvement in the administration of justice in the camp is really necessary, but those who can effect such improvements seem to be careless about camp interests, even its senators & representatives are principally city grandees, who think they are enough for their constituents when they accept their reelection without even a simple "thank you." If that noble champion of the people's rights (the "Tribuna") would only look down on his camp friends with compassion, we then might hope for better days, but we fear the king of the press and all his princes will do nothing for us, perhaps it's only what we deserve, considering we ran away from the glorious field of Favos, but on the other hand it should be remembered that we are the survivors of the war, and as the psychometer a little consideration.

November 26th 1861.

Mr. Editor.

Sir: Your correspondent who signs himself a "British Resident" seems surprised at the idea of raising the fees of the Scotch National School. I cannot see why he should be surprised. It is well known that during the last nine years everything has risen in price, the butcher, the tailor and even the changear have raised their charges, then, why in the name of common sense and justice should not the school-master be allowed the same privilege? Your correspondent cannot be aware of the fact that the fees of the Scotch National School are not even per cent lower than any other school in the town, this should not be. I do not see why the master of the Scotch School should not receive the same fees as any other master. I suppose your correspondent is a man of business, it so, no doubt he has taken good care to raise his prices. I don't suppose he buys and sells and lives in his losses; "live and let live" is my motto. I would advise your correspondent to have a little consideration, perhaps he has not been here long, if such be the case he has yet much to learn. I trust all the friends of our teacher will support his cause and be in mind though he be not a Scotchman, yet a man's a man for a' that.

I am, Sir,
Yours very Obedtly,
A SCOTCHMAN.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The old curse of Hispano-American Republics, civil war, it is not confined to the provinces of the Plata, but involves, at present, most of this business continent. Peru has not forgotten her differences with Bolivia, and we read of a menacing note from President Castilla, in which he evinces a fixed resolve to cross the frontiers of the neighboring state. At the same time the Minister of Ecuador has been ordered to withdraw from Lima, and the Peruvian army 20,000 strong is ready for operations against either, or both, of the offended Republics. Much sensation has been caused by General Castilla's protest against the Spanish annexation of Santo Domingo: this document, being an encyclical letter to South American governments, calls upon the whole continent to unite in preventing the ambitious views of O'Donnell, who seems to entertain the idea of restoring to Spain her long-lost colonies. Marshal San Román is canvassing for the future Presidency, elections for which will take place in 1863: this is "taking time by the forelock" but as this veteran is rather feeble, his claims may fall, ere they to his next of kin, Castilla has employed a countryman of M. Lesseps to supply two cities, Paiza and Piura, with water, and M. Janvier, another Frenchman, has been sent to Europe, being about to establish in Peru a riding-school of trade and art for the rising generation. A co-freer of Elliber Walker, named Almeida, has been murdered, it is supposed, by a sereno. One Zegers who had taken a wrinkle from Robson Rathpath & Co. has been practising calligraphy to his neighbors detriment, but, as this young gent thought Railway shares an ignominious booty, he horrified President Castilla's name for a bill of 40,000 silver dollars. Strange enough the fraud was not detected until the bill became due, and Messrs. Gibbs of London protested its dishonour, while the Peruvian Government protested the bill was indeed highly dishonourable.

From Bogota we hear of great doings. Mosquera has everything his own way, and rides with most capricious ease. He has confined the ex-president Ospina, along with several other dignitaries civil and clerical. He has made the citizens pay up 450,000 $ and sent all Granadine diplomatic agents about their business, threatening to hang them with their own red-tape. He has declared war to the Church and banished the Jesuits. He has converted Congress into a Plenipotentiary Assembly, and ordered all correspondence (even letters, the barbarian) to be passed unopened, thus saving the trouble of Sir James Graham's formula, and possessing himself of the affiches of his subjects. He is about to march on P-payan, having confiscated the whole city & province; but Sr. Girardo appears disposed to dissent from his measures, and has raised 3,000 men by a monopoly of beef and salt. Thus the unfortunate people are in a sad way between Constitutionalists and Legitimists, when, in reality, there is no Constitution and very little Legitimacy in the whole Republic.

VARIETIES.

"India, my boy" said an Irishman to a friend on his arrival at Calcutta "is just the finest climate under the Sun; but a lot of young fellows come out here, and they drink and they eat, and they eat and they drink, and they die; and then they write home to their friends a pack o' lies, and say it's the climate as has killed 'em."

Two cardinals found fault with Raphael for having in one of his pictures, given to Florida a complexion to St. Peter and St. Paul ("Gentlemen" replied the artist just as he surprised; I paint them just as they look in heaven. They are blushing with shame to see the Church below so badly governed.

PRIVATE HISTORY OF THE POPE.—The following remarks on the private history of the Pope were made at a Catholic soiree at Carlisle, by the Rev. C. Clifton: "Pope Pius the Ninth, who at present sits in the chair of St. Peter, was born of a noble family, and in his early youth he entered the army. Having been attacked by a serious illness, on his restoration to health he, in gratitude for his recovery, embraced the ecclesiastical state. For some time he was employed on a mission in South America. After his recall he was appointed Apostolic Nuncio at Naples. By his indefatigable and praise-worthy labours there, particularly during the prevalence of the cholera, he gained the golden opinions of all men. He sold his horses, his carriage, and his furniture, and ministered to the necessities of the sick and the dying; and when questioned on this point he replied, 'it is not fitting that the ministers of Christ should ride in carriages when the poor of Christ's people are dying in the streets.' (Loud applause.) He was afterwards appointed Bishop of Inola, and on the death of Gregory the Sixteenth he was finally elected Pope. On hearing the news of his election he fainted away, and it was only after the repeated solicitations of the cardinals that he accepted the office. He accepted it, exclaiming, 'Lord, notwithstanding the unworthiness of thy servant, thy will be done.' His time has truly proved to him a crown of thorns. Benevolent and forgiving, he was truly great in the days of his adversity, and now that he is again seated on his rightful throne, in his own city, may he live long to diffuse happiness and contentment around him, to direct and govern the Catholic Church entrusted to his charge, and may many years be the reward of his exalted virtues." [Applause.]

MISCELLANEOUS.

M. DE MONTALEMBERT ON POLAND.
 M. de Montalembert has spent a considerable part of the summer of this year in visiting Poland, and in obtaining by personal inspection, accurate knowledge of love, M. de Montalembert does not appear new for the first time as the advocate of the unfortunate country, or as the avenger, in so far as the eloquent tongue and the eloquent pen can average, a great nation crushed by so cruel an oppression, and abandoned by those in whose cause it had so often given its blood. He has acquired a considerable mass of information during his late sojourn in Poland, and he has communicated it to the public in the last number of the Correspondant—a monthly periodical which once celebrated prosecution and the menace of another have identified with his name. It would be difficult for such a man to treat any topic without adorning it, and even Poland acquires new interest from a pen like his. Of the actual condition of the Polish people he draws the following picture:—

"Let the man who knows the Paris of 1861 figure to himself a whole nation which dreams neither of amusement nor of money-making. Poland thinks only of her past and her future. She is absorbed by her sorrows and her hopes. In presence of modern civilization, which looks but to lucre and pleasure, which denies the existence of pain, and which enervates the will, she suffers and she wails. Her suffering is incurable; her will is invincible. With her all is grave, sad, and sombre. With her everything bears the impress of one inflexible determination—that of accepting neither peace, nor prosperity, nor security, and of never leaving either to her masters till justice is done here. That justice is a debt of God! It will be paid. Cost what it may, it will be paid, and until it is paid we will protest, and none shall ever force us to compromise with misery. This is the dominant thought of Poland. It is this which speaks in her looks, in her words, even in every gesture of her children. It is the ever recurring theme in her conversation, in every prayer, in every hymn; it is found in the chorus of the famous canticle which is heard at this moment in every church and in every thoroughfare of Poland—Lord God restore to us our liberty!"

"Meantime her mourning is complete and universal. A people gay by temperament, ardent for show and pleasure, now totally refrains from them. Theatres are abandoned, gardens deserted, public and private festivities suppressed. The dance, of all pastimes the most popular among the Poles, as among the Hungarians and the Spaniards, is strictly prohibited, even in the interior of families. Every woman dresses from head to foot in black. They who so much love ornament, and for which they are so well famed, are unanimously renounced every colour but that of mourning. For the last six months the practice has been adopted from one end of Poland to the other, in sign of reproach and indignation, but also as a pledge of union and reconciliation. The parties which once divided Poland are now but one; all differences are suspended, forgotten, or lie hidden beneath the general affliction of the common country. No prohibition, no violence, no cruelty even (and several acts of cruelty have been committed against persons wearing mourning met by the Russian soldiers in the streets) can put a stop to this terrible and mute 'declaration of war.' The churches resound with the music of mournful chants, mingled with aspirations for a happy resurrection. The words of the old Litany, 'From pestilence, fire, and war deliver us, Lord' have been changed; they are now, 'From pestilence, fire, and Muscovite servitude, deliver us, Lord.'"

"I have heard and admired," says M. de Montalembert, "all the masterpieces of religious and profane music, ancient or modern, but neither the boasted music of the Sixtine Chapel nor the enchanting harmonies of Gluck and Beethoven have ever affected me so much as that chant inspired by the ardent inspiration of faith, of sorrow and of patriotism, and which penetrates the deep mysteries of all. Every time those truly celestial sounds struck my ear, whether in the full choir or in the moorest village church, when the organ alternated with the voice of the peasant, or when the tremulous voice of childhood, or the sweet accents of the youthful maiden were heard in a lone garden or by the hearthstone, that melody seemed to me like something superhuman. Never were imploring accents expressed in sweeter, more searching, and more passionate modulations. I pity the man who could hear them without his heart thrilling with anguish and his eye being wet with tears as the plaintive notes rise and fall in a cadence, each time more and more pathetic, until the closing invocation is heard in an irresistible burst of anguish and of love. But what must be the feelings of those who have heard it rush forth, like a torrent of fire, from the lips of twenty thousand, of fifty thousand Christians at the same moment, standing up, unarmed, before their bewildered oppressors?

Of multitudes determined not to combat but to die, and breathing in the agony of death, and by their last sign, a defiance and a protest—this irresistible appeal to the avenging Omnipotence of a soul and the cry of a nation, both bowed down beneath the bitter weight of grief, and inflamed by the most fervent faith. It is the cry of anguish and of confidence, of reproach and of tenderness, which would force itself through the vault of Heaven for eternal justice and pity to descend."

M. de Montalembert affirms that Poland has never yet for one moment become reconciled to her servitude. What she demanded in 1830, in 1845, in 1847 she now demands; she is resolved to get it, and she is convinced that she will get it, doubtless by other means than at these periods, but with the same resolution and the same unanimity. "What other nation in the modern world," he asks, "is in the same condition? What remains to the France of 1789 of her ideal of justice, of progress and liberty, of her generous aspirations, of her youthful and candid ardour in pursuit of good, of her simple confidence in right, in liberty, in reason, in parliament, in the all-sufficient force of reasoning? What remains to England of the grand and powerful policy which, with all her errors and her selfishness, had so justly won the confident admiration of the world— which, with the inspired eloquence of Burke, and the firm and resistless hand of Pitt, seemed to have implanted for ever in every English heart the eternal distinction between resolution and flattery? What remains to Germany of the memorable union of her princes and her people in 1813—of the immense and glorious movement which raised them up as one man against a foreign conqueror?"

"What remains to North America of the institutions and ideas which had so long accustomed us to seek on her soil the ideal of the future? Nothing, alas! or almost nothing."

M. de Montalembert pays a noble tribute to the memory of Prince Adam Czartoryski; and expresses full confidence in the future of a country which can produce men of such a stamp. He recalls with pride the protests of the French parliaments in which he himself took so large a part in favour of Poland. "We do not fail in our duty," he says, "when we meet the most interested, aided by a publicity the most sincere, and the most complete that ever existed, for right against indifference and forgetfulness; when we cherished the secret flame of honest indignation; when we prevented the establishment of prescription for our advantage of inquiry. In spite of the contemptuous disdain which the press of the antechamber now affects towards us, we have nothing to regret. The famous words, 'Polish nationality will not perish,' heard thirty years ago from a constitutional throne, are now more than ever a truth. Those words, which I then repeated with the ardent inexperience of youth, I now again repeat with the rooted conviction of ripe age."

Yes, Poland will have another birth. She has twice lived already. She has disclosed to the world her existence by a moral victory, of which her own history, of which contemporaneous history does not present a second example. The events of Warsaw are as a battle won. I understand the mourning which I have everywhere seen; but it is not the victims, and the victors who are wept for. Poland will again live by them, and like them let her own fate be herself. Let her trust to no one. Let her put her trust neither in orators nor in Cæsars. Let her do nothing to forfeit the sympathy of honest men, of Christian people. That sympathy of may be often, and even long, powerless; but the cause which has it is not condemned to perish ignominiously. Hail, then, cherished and noble Poland! If God prolong your trial, it is to render you more worthy of a glorious emancipation. Hail, Niobe of nations! Salvation and hope be yours, the undying type of right, of innocence, of misfortune, but also of power—of moral power—of the only power which merits to be served and admired here below!"
