30—SUBERACHA—30

The principal of the establishment continues to promote his system of instruction, under the most favorable auspices. His practical acquaintance with the most popular systems of education in England and the United States has enabled him to introduce branches and improvements, which render his institution the most efficient hitherto known in these countries.

Thoroughly qualified English teachers have charge of the pupils, and the highest branches are taught by competent professors. The greatest attention is given to the moral and physical culture of the boarding pupils, who reside under the constant supervision of Mrs. Nicholson.

To promote in the country or provinces who desire a home for their children, this institution offers various advantages, and especially the peculiar necessity hitherto felt; that in order to secure a suitable moral education, children must be sent to England or the United States.

References given to the British mercantile community, to whom this establishment is favorably known, as numbers of its former pupils occupy prominent positions in the first mercantile houses of the city.
