ENGLISH PACKET REVIEW

The riches and resources of the interior provinces of the state are attracting the attention of foreigners...

The political state of the Argentine Republic is without a change; peace reigns throughout the provinces...

The new national finance minister, Sr. Peña, is a man who enjoys a very excellent reputation in the River Plate...

Our streets are so crowded with well-dressed young men, who come out here, allured by false ideas...

The Provincial Bank has published a statement of its operations during the past year, which shows a gain of some seven millions and a half of paper money...

The heavy fall of rain on yesterday morning is one of the greatest and most beneficial events which we could have desired...

The only articles which are in demand are refined sugars, which, owing to the higher prices asked by the growers...

The arrival of the steamship from the Southern Railway will be completed so far...

Some shares of this railway have been lately taken up. There is, however, a considerable difficulty in the extraordinary condition...

at the exact point to which it should be extended. This road is doing a splendid business...

The Boen Railway which is possible is unknown in Europe, as it is rather a private company, but has been undergoing some serious changes...

The Western Railway, which belongs to the Government, is doing a very good business, and the works are being continued to a large respectable country town...

The cotton crop, it is expected, will be picked in March. It is, however, understood that the crop will be returned from its travels, and gives it as his opinion that the export will far exceed the general expectations...

D. Hector Varela is reclining on his laurels, since his return from Europe. It is highly probable, but little magnanimous, for the chief editor of the Tribuna to play the dummy with his own paper...

Messrs. Drabble Bros. have offered to purchase the cotton crop of Corrientes, this year at three silver cents per lb. ginned cotton. It will probably amount to 20,000 lbs...

The Maua Bank has purchased the largest house and best site in the town of Mercedes (Banda Oriental) for its new branch in that place...

There are few passengers by this packet to England, the present being an unfavorable season. Mr. Jacobs and family are of the number...

Messrs. Briel and Mollo sang Lucia's Arioso at Colon theatre on Tuesday night. The singing was very good, but they omitted some of the best parts...

The French packet is expected on Thursday, and will probably bring very important news from Europe, about Napoleon's Congress...

Basilian frontier, meanwhile Colonel O'Neil, who was in command of some two thousand men belonging to the Government, has become so disgusted at the delinquency of the Executive, and the lengthened duration of this scandalous revolution, that he has marched without waiting orders to attack Flores, having hoisted the white ribbon, which is the insignia of the ultra anti Flores party. It is generally believed that if O'Neil acts with his usual determination he will make very short work of Flores.

President Berro, notwithstanding the revolution seems anxious to advance the country. He has a law passed, authorizing a horse railway which can subsequently be made serviceable for locomotives. We hear that an English house in Montevideo has got the contract. The full particulars respecting this proposed line will be found in last week's Weekly Standard. The salaries in the Uruguay have at last commenced working, but owing to the revolution they are unable to carry on operations with their usual activity; the scarcity of peons, not cattle, is what is at present felt.

The wool from the estancias are arriving very slowly in Montevideo. The market is very good and fine; present price for good, well-conditioned merino, is 5-14 silver dollars, which is much higher than the Buenos Ayres market.

The Maua Bank, which netted a profit last year of over half a million of silver dollars, has just opened another branch in Mercedes, which is one of the most important country towns in the Uruguay.

During the so-called siege of Paysandu, by Flores, the British gunboat, Spiter, anchored in front of that town for the protection of British residents; but the invader was too inactive to do much harm either to foreigners' lives or properties.

The estancieros in the Banda Oriental, although harassed by the revolution, have escaped the horrors of the drought, which has caused so much loss in Buenos Ayres. The camps, not being overstocked, have always had plenty of grass, and, as a general rule, the estancieros have done well.

The export trade is at present very brisk in Montevideo. Imports have been less active, owing to the enormous quantity of goods which has crossed before the last of January, 1864.

Latest about Flores. A courier arrived yesterday morning in this city, from the scene of operations in Banda Oriental, bringing news of a check between the rival armies. As he is an agent of the revolutionary party, we may place credence in his account of the reverse sustained by the filibusters.

It seems, as we announced on Saturday, the combatants were drawing so near as to promise a signal engagement. Flores had ordered his lieutenants to attack a battle, but Caraballo disobeying the command got his division into a serious fray, and was surrounded by the Government troops. In this emergency Flores found the fate of his army compromised, and rushed forward with all his men to rescue the indiscreet officer. Several blows were exchanged by the combatants; it is even said the filibusters had some killed and wounded.

At length both parties, wearied of the unusual exertion, gave simultaneous notice, and Flores retired in good order to Paso Polmar on the Rio Negro. We are not informed whether he intends crossing that river, or returning in the direction of Paysandu.

Outrage at the Boca. The following address, signed by 150 persons, has been presented to the Government:—

"We, the undersigned residents in the Boca del Riochivo, present ourselves to your Excellency, and beg to state that the shameful outrage perpetrated over our children, to see what news from that neighbouring republic. We regret to say that the Flores revolution still wears on. Flores has attacked an important town on the river Uruguay, called Paysandu, and notwithstanding all the fellow's bombastic threats and promises, yet signally defeated. A defiant however in the River Plate signifies nothing unless the river maver or leader of the revolution is captured and once executed. As usual, Flores, in his attack on Paysandu, took good care of himself, and when he heard that the Government general, Sr. Don Juan de Urquiza, was coming up in his rear, he at once retreated. He is now making forced marches for a place called Taurembio, which is situated on the
