way of sending it to the Brazil. English keeps this gold, and accounts for it by English manufactures. The States alone on compete in manufacture with England, and reduce the present highly extravagant prices.

During the three years preceding the introduction of steamers into the Brazil, the increase in English imports into that country was less than 1-10th and during the three years which followed that important measure, it rose as high as 100 per cent.

LOCAL EVENTS

Walker?—The 'Tribuna' has a well authenticated story of one of the women of the first Spaniards in this country, being saved from being eaten up by lions and tigers, by a lioness which she had some previous time, assisted in catching. As it is too long for our columns we would recommend our readers to read it themselves.

man and friend of ours." We can almost imagine Swift's proposing that the writer should be admitted into his hospital, and set to extract sugar from cucumbers. Our advice to our native colleagues is—if they tell a really good story don't let them, for goodness sake, preface it with "a friend of ours," or "a gaucho, when in a pulperia" for good wine needs no bush—and besides, should there be no such thing as spiritualism proven, as well to on the safe side, and not run the risk of being haunted by a robed ghost.

Quakers in Buenos Aires—Some of the disciples of Fox and Penn appear to have come to this part of the globe, perhaps in hopes of preserving some traces of their tenets. The Argentine provinces are now becoming the City of Heliopolis for the world. Some English Quakers, afraid of the fierce Welsh language dying out, proposed a colony of Welshmen, who could only talk their mother tongue, some way down South America, at the seat of Quakers is rapidly decreasing in Europe, some of them have taken shelter here.

Another rumour ran through the Bolsa Hall, to the effect that Flores and President Aguirre had made peace, but few who know the real condition of the man Flores credited the story. This was the last rumour up to two o'clock. To-morrow, we suppose, the story will be that Hector Varela is raising a volunteer corps to start for Saltesiano Holstein.

In exchange we hear of £200,000 being taken on England at 6 1/2, 6d, and 6 3/4.

The Casa de Moneda it is said, will shortly change its rate of interest. We have not heard the proposed rate. Messrs Brandt, Solin, and Co, have opened a branch house in Montevideo. A large dry goods trade sale is coming off next Tuesday, at Messrs. Fels and Company.

REMARKS

Italian barque Tolo to load in Fray Bentos school hides for London, at 2 1/2. Freight is terribly dull.
