FRENCH PACKET REVIEW. Our French mail-bag takes so little of interest, as hardly to merit review for the fortnight.

1st. The disappearance of M. Caumartin, a French merchant of 33 years' standing, with liabilities estimated at $24,000 sterling; last week it was, however, ascertained that he neither fled nor committed suicide, but offered to give himself up, on certain terms.

2nd. The murder of Mr. Denholm, near Paysandu, by a gascion, who came to rob the house, under pretext of asking for a glass of water; the ruffian also wounded the widow and children of his victim, but not dangerously.

3rd. The commission of more than 50 highway robberies, or burglaries, in some cases accompanied with murder in the suburbs of Buenos Ayres, during the last fortnight.

4th. The news from the San Juan mines has caused increased confidence. Some good veins are being worked at Castano; five boxes of metals arrived at Mercedes, besides 20 'cargas' at Hilario.

5th. The active prosecution of the Great Southern, the Western, and the Boca Railway works.

LATEST FROM CORRIENTES. GREAT EXCITEMENT. MILITARY MUTINY.

On Saturday, the 2nd inst., one of those unhappy mutinies, which, we regret to say, too often occur in these countries, took place in Corrientes, causing the greatest alarm in the town, and resulting in the death of some 20 to 30 Corrientinos.

ordante officer marched his guard on board, and with a company of Corrientes; it was well he did so, for we have heard that measures were being taken to secure the guard's departure, were defeated.

Corrientes, on Thursday last, when the Paraguay steamer passed up, presented rather the appearance of a town lately revolutionized than anything else; the mutineers were to be met with in every street, and it required no very great perspicuity to perceive, several were the sympathies of the people.

We regret to say that several corpses have been discovered in the river; and it is pretty generally believed, that in order the exact number of those slain down should not be known, several bodies were launched into the Parana.

We will not take upon ourselves to judge the expediency of the step which caused this mutiny, but we do most unhesitatingly say that there is a decided antipathy on the part of the people in the provinces to be dragged from their homes and forced to serve as soldiers in Buenos Ayres.

Possibly under a different form of Government, the people of the provinces may yet be brought to learn that they owe allegiance to the President, no matter where located. But as at present situated, we doubt if five leagues north of Rosario a ranchero could be got to obey the National Government before the Provincial authorities.

There is too much of the imperium in parvo in the River Plate, and sooner or later the National Government will receive views of Argentine matters as the soundest and the best.

We have heard it said that the meeting in Corrientes has been effected by crude paper dollars, but candidly speaking we do not believe such to be the case. The real fact of the matter is, that the National Government do not want to go to Buenos Ayres, and the National Government was not able to force them.

We opine there should be nothing more of the matter, as any attempt on the part of the National Government to punish the poor runaway soldiers by means of the Provincial authorities, may possibly lead to similar consequences.

Mr. Wheelwright had the kidneys to send us through Mr. Gowland, a map showing the comparative merits of Ensenada and Glasgow as a shipping port. The odds are decidedly in favour of the former, and much renowned as is the Clyde, we have greater facilities in a harbour near hand, comparatively unknown, but estimated by Mr. Wheelwright to be capable of holding, with ease, 1000 vessels.

The Saint-Joseph leaves this evening for Europe; among her passengers is the eminent Paraguayan merchant, Don Ojeda Saguer, who is about to make a tour of the Continent, and to whom we wish pleasant travels, in return for his kindness to ourselves when visiting his native country.

It is understood that M. Caumartin sent bills on Europe, by last packet, to the amount of £16,000 sterling, some of which the ruffian hopes to recover, as he has not escaped.

We call special attention to the new Agency for shipping steamer and propelling machinery and labourers for vessels in port, loading or unloading. Messrs. Howard and Keen are well known to our shipping community, and promise to afford great convenience to mercantile interests in general.

'LA STRANIERA.' The new opera has been a great success. On Saturday evening the theatre presented a respectable house, there being at least 1300 persons present.

This opera, we understand, has been placed on our boards for the first time, and the manager spared no pains to make it a favorite at first sight; all the scenery, decorations &c. were new, and the orchestra was in full strength, and the chorus much improved.

'In Straniera' in a fine dramatic piece set to music by the immortal composer of Norma and Sonnambula; the incidents are strikingly romantic, and the thread of the plot well maintained until its tragic denouement.

Act 1st opens with a brilliant scene of rejoicing at lake and village of Montoino (Bretagne), for Isoletta (Mollo) the heiress of the baronial chateau, is about to be espoused to Arthur, Count of Ravenna (Lelini). The illuminated castle and village, and gay gondolas on the lake, have a pretty effect, while the serenade 'Vozzaga, i vento face' is sung alternately by men and women. The next scene is an interview between Isoletta and Baron Valdeburg (Celestino); the former fears that Arthur's affection has been attracted by La Straniera.

indeed, La Straniera is to our idea the best role which we have seen the 'prima donna.' Act 3d begins with the trial of La Straniera before the knight-templar, for the murder of Valdeburg. Alaide declares her innocence, but refuses to disclose her name or history, whereupon Ojeda demands her condemnation; but Arturo escaping from the confinement, in a ghastly shriek, declaring he fell in fair fight with Arturo; presently he lays aside disguise and recounts his miraculous escape from the waters. He urges Alaide to flee with him to obscurity, in the thrilling ballad 'L'ange da questo porto.'

This was so feelingly sung that the audience called enthusiastically for an encore. The prior (Water) was not auffer La Straniera to depart without seeing her face, and when the utters to him he starts back in amazement. Arturo again goes in search of his lost love, and Alaide, who denies him access, his singing of 'Ta traditi' calling down rapacious plaudits. Madame Mollo certainly disputed the claim with her rival, Isoletta's denial him access, his singing of 'Ta traditi' calling down rapacious plaudits. Madame Mollo certainly disputed the claim with her rival, Isoletta's denial him access, his singing of 'Ta traditi' calling down rapacious plaudits.

The charming Isoletta, in the bridal dress, awaits Arturo, who has sworn to Alaide, on her bed of sickness, to wed the youthful Baroness. The chorus of men and maidens at the Temple is a strange contrast with the bewildered smiles of Arturo; at length Isoletta throws aside her nuptial garb and releases him from her throes; Alaide comes forward, restores the wreath to Isoletta's tresses, and leads the pair to the steps of the church. She sings 'Sono all'ara' with most profound emotion, and when the marriage oath is pronounced within, falls senseless at the altar. Arturo rushes into the church, and embraces Alaide, while the Prior comes forward and announces by letter from the King the restoration of La Straniera to the queenly dignity, her rival Isoletta being dead. Arturo kills himself, and the curtain drops as Alaide exclaims 'Volo al cielo de la tomba, agnora punto un busto amaro.' In this act Walter excelled himself very creditably, and Scenabelli and Chiodini not badly. On the whole, it is one of the best operas we have seen in Buenos Ayres, and the mise en scene reflects much praise on Sr. Pestalozza. The number of 'librett' among the audience was very great; the Balcones having disposed of some hundreds. We are glad to announce La Straniera will be repeated to-morrow night; this review may serve as a libretto.

THE BOLSA ROBBERY. The audacity of our city robbers and impudence of the police have arrived at a culminating point, and people are divided in opinion as to the most suitable remedy to this scandalous and critical state of affairs.

At 12.30 on Saturday night, the clerk Sar Vidal who sleeps on the premises went to the brokers' counting room in search of a key which he had forgotten. On entering he was suddenly seized by the arm and his light extinguished his mouth being at once gagged. The robbers went on snatching the brokers' pigeon-hole, and having taken from Mr. Vidal a sum of $1282 retired with a booty altogether amounting to $3000 (paper). The clerk soon got loose and gave the alarm, but the robbers could find no robbers. At last some persons went to the adjoining roof, where the new corner house is building, and found a fellow lying at full length, who confessed he had just snatched himself at house-breaking had by. He has not disclosed who are his accomplices, and gave a false name, but has been recognized by some of the Italian servants, dismissed from the Bolsa some time ago for misconduct. It is remarkable that the robbers left Sar Vidal his watch, but took his money, which he has since been unable to recover to refund him. The burglars are thought to have been but two in number. Much praise is given to the neighbors, especially M. Correo, the French broker.

It was found that 57 pigeon-holes had been broken open, in which brokers sometimes leave small change but the robbers were disappointed, the booty only amounting to one doblon and 1400 depreciated paper-dollars (worth three half-pence each). So frightened were the Serenos that they not only shrank from exploring the gloomy corridors, but refused to lend their lanterns and lances to some persons anxious to catch the thieves. At first it was feared the attempt was directed against the Maua Bank, which adjoining the rear, but this is left for a future occasion.

The gang is probably the same as that which robbed Mr. Coffin's estate and its next attempt will be, we hope, against the Caxa de Moneda, as it is not fair that private parties should pay for the criminal neglect of our authorities. The robbers in Flores continue in full flight; we learn that the number of outrages, instead of 45 as we reported, exceeds 100. On Saturday two more gentlemen were robbed: one of them is a cousin to Mr. Laithe, and he was deprived of horse, watch and money, but left his clothes. Two poor fellows were stripped stark naked within a square of the new railway station, last week. A locality near the church is now jokingly called 'the killing-ground,' as several persons have been despatched there of late, and now it is the robbers' rendezvous. We are told that the police not only know the robbers by appearance, but are perfectly aware of their houses and haunts; the vigilantes being only a few in number are naturally afraid to beard 80 bandits in their den, and content themselves with looking round the corner of a street and declaring they see no robbers.

Meantime Government is supinely indifferent, regarding the epidemic just as an accident of weather, which comes and goes of its own accord. We may perhaps afford to see the suburbs desolated by banditti, but this thing becomes more serious when such depredations are performed nightly in the city. If possible we should treat the heroes of the Bolsa robbery to a champagne breakfast, as they have done the public a service by putting them on the square, and convincing every sane man that the interests of the city would be best consulted by sending Sr. Cason as burglar-chief to Palermo, and converting the Police into a 'Polizia.'

LATEST PARTICULARS. We have been favored, by the Manager of the Bolsa, with the following account: About 12.30 on Saturday night, the clerk Sar Vidal who sleeps on the premises went to the brokers' counting room in search of a key which he had forgotten. On entering he was suddenly seized by the arm and his light extinguished his mouth being at once gagged. The robbers went on snatching the brokers' pigeon-hole, and having taken from Mr. Vidal a sum of $1282 retired with a booty altogether amounting to $3000 (paper). The clerk soon got loose and gave the alarm, but the robbers could find no robbers. At last some persons went to the adjoining roof, where the new corner house is building, and found a fellow lying at full length, who confessed he had just snatched himself at house-breaking had by. He has not disclosed who are his accomplices, and gave a false name, but has been recognized by some of the Italian servants, dismissed from the Bolsa some time ago for misconduct. It is remarkable that the robbers left Sar Vidal his watch, but took his money, which he has since been unable to recover to refund him. The burglars are thought to have been but two in number. Much praise is given to the neighbors, especially M. Correo, the French broker.

SIERGE OF CHARLESTON RAISED. Three days later from America. In Columbia, South Carolina, some $3,000,000 worth of cotton have been destroyed by fire. Colt's pistol manufactory, in Hartford, Connecticut, has been burned. The loss sustained is about $2,000,000, only part of which is covered by insurance.

In Congress, various proposals have been made to amend the constitution, all of them in favour of abolishing slavery. The sero of Charleston has been abandoned, and the forces which were employed there have been sent to Florida. It is supposed that this step has been taken in view of the coming Presidential elections, and has caused great discontent. On the 11th February there was a large fire in Napa city, California, and about $20,000 worth of property destroyed.

General Alende has taken command of the Army of the Potomac. A reconnaissance has been made of the other side of the Rapidan, and General Lee found strongly encamped. Admiral Dahlgren had refused liberty to H.M. frigate Porpoise to enter the port of Charleston with despatches for the Secretary of the Secession Government, and for H.B.M. Consul at Savannah.

The Southerners have sent reinforcements to Savannah, where General Beauregard had his head-quarters, as an attack on that city is expected. Butler's forces had advanced within 12 miles of Richmond. His object was to the enemy and to bring the war to the Richmond was in a great state of panic owing to the approach of the U.S. troops. The Yankee Congress at present in the capital, are to be sent to Georgia, as a conspiracy to murder Jefferson Davis had been discovered. It is reported that Lee thinks that if the Southerners could hold out till September, the worst crisis will be past. The Secession troops have been defeated in Western Virginia. General Sherman has left Vicksburg and gone on a cruise up the Big Black River. The Mexicans had taken San Luis Potosi; Juarez has abdicated, and Gonzalez Ortega has been placed at the head of the Constitutional Government. A great number of cities have declared in favor of the Empire - Panama Star and Herald & N. Argentina.

MONTEVIDEO.

In consequence of some unknown cause, the authorities have forbidden the mask balls which were announced. In the Montevideo newspapers we see a startling announcement, of which we were perfectly unawares previously: During the storm of Monday last, a Spanish bark, having on board a cargo of wine, was totally lost in our harbour. It is owing to the elections, or some other cause of equal moment, that nothing was heard of her loss in Buenos Ayres.

I last accounts from the other side, to the evening of the 7th inst., the steamer Una had not yet arrived. The Montevideo authorities are displaying most unbecoming (for them) activity, in their endeavours to save their city from the 'pest.' Their example might easily be followed, with considerable profit, by the Municipality in this evil-smelling city; that is, if they can possibly spare a few moments from their arduous exertions in favour of elections.

In Fray Bentos, Flores had appointed authorities. Flores had received two eighteen pounders, and intended again making an assault on Paysandu. In the capital, the National Guards have again been called out, on the 'suspicious' performance of the officers of the Forte was postponed till Monday (11th) inst. Several young unive gentlemen intend playing in company with the boys the chess charitable object viz., the Public and British Hospitals.

In Montevideo, the storm of last Monday seems also to have made some damage. The British ship, William Jackson, and the Spanish brig, Corina, came in contact, and both suffered some damage. The Corina lost some of her crew. The captain of the vessel was lying on shore sick, and the second mate, in order to save his ship, slipped his cable, and tried to drift in shore; in doing so, the buoy of one of the rocks in front of the Libertad Island. She will have to discharge her cargo. The William Jackson also sustained some damage, particulars of which we have not heard. In the confusion on board the vessel which followed the collision, the mate and two sailors of the Corina were left on board the William Jackson, and which three sailors of this vessel on board the Corina.

The Oriental newspapers say, with pride, that not one single National Guard of all those summoned, was absent when the roll was called. On the 7th the body of a foreigner was found drowned. No particulars are known, and the corpse was handed over to the police.

SOME INQUIRY PARTY REQUESTS THE 'TRIBUNA' TO ASK US IF WE EVER TRAVELLED ON THE NORTHERN RAILWAY; ALTHOUGH THIS IS NO BUSINESS OF THE PARTY, WE ARE OF OBLIGING A DISPOSITION THAT WE WILL ANSWER HIM. We have travelled by that line, and have been particularly struck with seeing individuals in the passenger cars whom we never expected to see anywhere but in the cattle-trucks, their complexions, naturally muddy, were rendered muddier by too strict an economy of soap and water, and the same observations will apply to the wretched parts of their attire, which might have been changed with comfort to themselves and gratification to their friends. They all appeared to have had differences with their laundresses, and to have left off washing in early youth. They however made up for this dimness by very loud cravats, shiny boots, and immaculate kid gloves, which, if paid for, must have left them without breakfast or dinner on several occasions. They derived much amusement from smoking bad cigars, and discussing filthy language, joined to playfully calling one another sanguinary 'crudos' or 'condos' as the case might be. When asked by the guards for their tickets, their near little souls were insulted, and instead of their being treated as they deserved, they were allowed to maintain their seats, while the wretched Chimpanzees also got on the roof of the cars and amused themselves and annoyed the passengers by stamping with their boots and trying to walk the wretched two journeys on foot; has done no more than many thousands of his fellow creatures, with this difference that they generally are not allowed to go loose, but are obliged to carry their trousers, pasture, or some other burden.

Since the 'Tribuna' has opened its columns to enquiring citizens, would it please enlighten the public to the plot of the libel case brought by the Maua Bank against it?

It appears that the epidemic of Kleptomania is fast spreading throughout the country. In San Juan, Don Ignacio Sarriena had stolen from his estate more than a hundred mules and horses. His Captains, in company with some peons have gone on their trail.

Boles, and a large concourse of merchants, and a silent war of course first directed to the scene of Saturday night's burglary.

Some exchange transactions are reported at 67 shillings, but latest rates were 67s 4d (32 1/2), and the total amount drawn about £170,000, of which a large amount by Maua.

There is no later news about M. Lohr's sleep. Quipping the attack on Sr. Riestra's camp at Flores, we saw it was exaggerated; the shots were fired by, not at, the inmates, on hearing no noise outside.

The shareholders of the Gas Company are very anxious to know how their affairs stand, no account having been passed or dividend declared.
