OUR JUNE MONTHLIES

The River Plate Magazine is hardly up to the level, in this number. The chapters of Argentine History, transla ted from Dominguez are readable The same may be said of Recollections of Tucuman translated from Dr. N. Viola; and the Querandi Indians, a treatise by Sor Trelles. Commerce with Polivia is an article by Sor San Martin. Dr. De Moussy's work contains Martin. Dr. De Moussy's work contains an interesting chapter on B. Ayres in 1864, which is reproduced by Mr Bliss but the latter has fallen into some errors: among others he states that there are Spanish and Italian daily papers, in B. Ayres. He estimates the city population at 200,000 souls, whereas the last census gave only 95,000. Zoo or the Gipsy girl's rovenge (canto II) occupies 9 pages—Mr. Lewis has a paper on the Press which is worthy of Conthill or Blackwood, and gives a most faithful picture of journalism in this city. The last two being the only original articles in this number, we faincy the editors and contributors have acy the editors and contributors have been rather slack, and as it is now pur-posed to publish the Magazine twice a we would remind them that the public requires something more than translations.

No. 13 of the Revista de Buenos Ayres is well got up. The episode of General San Martin's retreat from Peru is apropos of the present time, and graphically described by General Guido. Dr. Quesuda's Chronicle of and graphically described by General Guido. Dr. Quesada's Chronicle of our Convent of San Francis, throws much historical light on that ancient mohastic institution. Naval campaigns of Independence, by D. Anjel Carranza, contain many instances of heroism by English volunteers in aid of the patriot arms. D. Luis Dominguez (the accomplished author of Historia Argentina, and actual Minister of Finance for this province) renders a magnanimous tribute to the veteran Guido, mous tribute to the veteran Guido, showing that he was the proposer of General San Martin's march across the Andes to liberate Chile and Peru, as Andes to liberate Chile and Peru, as stated last Sunday by Capitain Leasa, at the meeting. The Biography of Dr. Valentine Gomez, will be interesting to those Argentines dedicated to the study of Jurisprudence An original story, by Sr. Blest Gama, bear the title 'Pago de Deudas,' which may be instructive to Civalleri's creditors, as also a Treatise on Bankruptcy, con-tributed by the commercial Judge, Dr. Pinedo. Dr. Viola reviews a drama, rineto, Dr. viola reviews a drama, called Lucia de Miranda, by an Argentine poet: we should like to have his opinion of 'Atar-Gull' Mme. Gorriti, of Lima, contributes a Eiblical legend, and concludes the present respectable volume, of 160 pages of diversified interest.

A NEW CLASS OF IMPLIGRANTS

Every European who lands upon our shores is a gain to the country, bringing a contingent of intellect and force to develop its resources; but he is a double boon, who adds to the qualifi cations of head and muscle a well lined purse. Hitherto most immigrants have come hither to earn a fortune, not invest one : but it is now a cheering indication of the confidence reposed in this country and in the stability of Gen. Mitre's Government, that, of late, every packet brings us half-a dozen English or Irish gentlemen with capi tals ranging from £500 to 5000, to invest in land and sheep farming. The French, Italian, or Spanish immigrants are of the same class as usual, men for the most part who had scarcely heard | lighting.

of B. Ayres, Before embarking for La Plata. Our Anglo-Irish new comers are of more liberal education and have been enticed to this country, by the new enterprises and favorable reports which they have seen in the newspapers. This class is evidently on the increase; as soon as the Central Argentine and Great Southern railways be in tine and Great Southern railways be in the state of this will be a vessels fall into an ambuscade. If it be true, as stated yesterday, that the Spanish war steamer Covadonga has gone northwards for supplies, it would be well for our fleet to pursue and the rapid dovelopment of the growth of colton and the rapid dovelopment of the growth of colt full play we may expect to see hundreds of capitalists and land speculators over-running the republic from Frayle Muerto to Dolores, and earnestly seeking out those tracts in Santiago sold at 30 shillings per sq. league (5,500 acres) in perpetuity. Nothing daunts a land jobber : he will cut up the provinces of San Luis and Cordoba into kitchen-gardens, in spite of Indians, as he has done Arkansas and Western Canada. He wants no frontier picquets: give him only a railway and e will convert Sahara into an Eden.

But the young men at present arriving with smaller or larger capitals are greatly at a loss to know where to turn. If they come to the "Standard" office we give them, beside a hearty ceadmillar failthu, all the information in our milia failing all the information in our some more details in the shop of a friendly grocer, or meet some disinte rested party who has a friend most anxious to sell out a farm possessing so many desirable advantages that is no less a pity to deprive him of it, than a wonder that he seeks to part with the

Still there is no inviting agency of Still there is no inviting agency office, with sherry and cold han on the table, and neatly bound ledgers and indices on the shelves, maps of imaginable and, unimaginable places on the walls, and an attentive, intelligent broker who can suit you to a dollar in the prudent investment of your nunt's legacy. 'Now we make bold to say that such an office is much wanted. Shipbroking, ounce-broking, and other occutions are overdone—why not try this new line of business?

We have a word also for the 'estancieros,' most of whom might increase their annual receipts by a couple of hundred pounds sterling, if they wished. A friend of ours in England, who takes a great interest in Buenos Ayres, assures us that he has had several dozen applications from fathers of families desirous of sending their sons out here to learn sheepfarming: they would lies desirous of sending their sons out there to learn sheepfarming; they would gladly pay £100 to any farmer who would take them for a year, employing them to look after sheep, and treating them as members of the family. If the suggestion is worth notice, we begour countrymen to advertise in our columns that they will take apprentices on such terms. on such terms.

EDITOR'S TABLE

The 'Tribuna' has at last been obliged to take a hint from the 'Stand' ard.' We perceive that they now start an 'Editor's Table,' but instead of crowding all the news of the day into their ' Mesa de la Reduccion,' and making a real bong fide ' editor's table.' or chapter of news, we find that the editor's table' of the 'Tribuna' has not one word of local news. We hope the talented editor of the 'Tribuna' will improve his 'editor's ta le,' and make it an interesting epitom: of current eveilts.

We read in the 'Reforma,' that some of the members of the Revolutionary Committee in Buenos Ayres set sail the other day for Carmelo, in order to see Flores and induce him to refuse peace on any terms. These anti-peace gentlemen landed, but fortunately could not get near Flores, owing to the proximity of the Government troops they, however, despatched a 'chasque,' telling Flores where they were, and to come quick, but having waited for a considerable time, and finding that there was no possible way to get nearer Flores, they returned to Buenos Ayres. We ask our readers can anything justify such conduct? Now that there is a probability of peace, these Oriental Mazzini's are untiring in their efforts to continue the revolution.

Sr. Marmol, it seems, has been very successful in Rio Janeyro. If we are to believe report, the Emperor of Brazil has promised to support Peru against Spain, and declares his intention to side with the South American Republies in the dispute. The success which attended other matters of his mission, we hear, has not been so complete as was expected. efforts to continue the revolution.

We regret to say, that through the incautious use of charcoal in a 'brazero,' one of our country-women was all but appears that the girl in question had only recently arrived in this country, and was utterly ignorant of the danger of charcoal. She put a brazero in her bedroom, in order to warm her feet, and went to hed leaving the charcoal lighting.

St. 2 was all but dead the plete as was expected.

The Northern Railway, we hear, will not be extended to Campana, but to Zarate, braving Campana considered by to the right. The Provincial Government, it appears, is willing to extend the guarantee, and give every assisted acc to the projected extension.

We hear of another case similar to that of the great flour question caused by the failure of Civalleri, where an English estanciero sold his wool to a certain firm and received $20,000 in part payment. The wool was weighed, delivered, and even baled in the purchaser's barraca, who failed. The Courts decided that the Englishman could follow the wool and take it, refunding to the estate the amount paid on account, which he did, and accordingly got back his wool.

No news at all about the balloon: every one is asking what has become of it. The general impression is that it has gone off on its own hook to Peru, being unwilling to wait until Mr. Wells and the Municipality came to terms. Meanwhile, according to one of our Yesterday a gentleman from Moron called on us for cotton seed to plant in Moron. He states that an apothecary planted some last year, which came up beautifully, and gave excellent cotton.

An English gentleman from La Parlias sent us samples of the cotton grown there, and promises to send us five or six quintals per return steamer.

The steamer Parana was unable to leave port on Wednesday evening, owing to the low water: We suppore she will leave to-day, if not already gone. The Paraguay has not yet arrived, although by some mistake we have Messrs Stotterfoln's circular marked "per Paraguay 30th April."

Mr. Wells was to see President Mitre yesterday, about getting public support for his great halloon project of support for his great halloon project of going over to Chile. As he lost his last balloon, it is only just that the public of B. Ayres should liberally recompense him. Meantime we begour camp friends to take care of the balloon 'Washington,' in case it may have fallen on their land.

Respecting the Ghost, we learn is will not be again exhibited with the Opera Co. Mr. Wells intends giving a separate performance of phantasmagoria. The Ghost was not appreciated the other evening, because the audience mistook the shadow thrown on the stage cortain for the figure itself. The defusion was most perfect, and had Lelmi run his sword through the shadow, to convince the public, we have no doubt the house would have rung with applause; but everyone thoug't was a live seene-shifter with a stragglight thrown on his face.

The French paper mentions some circumstances attending the suicide of the bankrupt Civalleri, who blew his brains out, instead of cutting the carotid artery as was first reported.

The last accident in the Northern The last accident in the Northern Rilway occurred not to an engine driver, but to the inspector of the engine department, who was getting on the train while in motion. His life was miraculously saved by a person who eaught him round the waist, and ran along with the train until-it stopped. Otherwise he must have been dragged under and killed. Since the amputation of the law he irrefused. tion of the leg, he is going on well.

FURTHER NEWS OF PERU

The Festo-carril' of Roserio, 11th gives the following news received by liligence from Mendoza with date Peru May 4th and Chile 14th.

Up to the present it was not thought expedient to make public the preparations undertaken by Government to repel the invaders. Meantime great efforts were made to fortify Cullao : a battery was mounted on the N. side of the city, another on the wharf, and a third at the old fort of Sta Rosa, while a fourth is about to be erected at the Punta. The names of the four are as follows: Aypcucho. Junin, Zepita and Pichincha. [The steel clad Monitor is in course of construction, and will be finished in about three weeks, when preparations were being made at Lima and Callao to receive Marshal Castilla on the 9th-inst., and it was supposed Pezet would be deposed from the Presidency to make room for the former.

The English frigate Leander baving approached the island, the Spanish frigate Triunfo ran out her guns and prepared for action, signalling by a congreve rocket to the vessel on the oppothe Union-jack was recognized, all was again quiet. The Leander on rounding the island found the Resolucion anchored in a cove which defied investiga-tion. It is clear that the Spuniards are not to be taken by surprise. The Le-ander arrived at Callao on the evening of May 2d. The Resolucion and Covadonga were afterwards reported coasting southwards by the Puntas de Po-ing southwards by the Puntas de Pojerei.

A Chilian paper states that Admirál Pinzon fordered one of his prisoners to take off the Peruvian epaulets, as "they were only the insignia of rebels," To which the latter replied that "he had received them from a nation which had several times whipped the Spaniards and would do so again." This is probably a yarn.

At the meeting in Santiago a number of Chilian notables declared, at the foot of Gen. San Martin's strute, their resolution to aid Peva. Another meeting lution to aid Peru. Another meeting was held in the Municipal theatre, and among the speakers was Vicuña Mac-kenna, son-in-law to the late renowned Irish hero of Independence, General

O'Brien,
The Spaniards in Peru have prevailed on Admiral Pinzon to release the Peruvian officers whom he held as host. ages for their safety.

THE ROSARIO MAILS.

The committee of the Central Argen tine Railway are indefatigable in getting subscribers to the stock, and their efforts are eminently successful, having already allotted 947 shares in Rosario alone, and it is expected this number will be much increased, if not doubled, the deposit (124 hard dollars) being paid up, or in course of collection. The largest subscriptions are-Maua 60, sian nation have been driven from their country, and are taking refuge in crowded and disease-stricken multitudes on the Turkish shores of the Black Sea. A few small independent tribes have long been maintaining a median struggle with the whole force of the Russian Empire; the inevit ole catastrophe has only been delayed by the display of extraordinary bravery, determination, and fanaticism; and it has fallen at last in proportions which transcend all calculation and for the moment overpower all resources. The Russian armies have been gradually closing in upon the unfortunate Circassians, and it seems to have been anticipated that if they were conquered they would not not remain under Russian rule, but endeavour to obtain shelter and protectives. endeavour to obtain shelter and pre endeavour to obtain shelter and protection under the Sultan, who is the principal monarch of their faith. The Russians, perhaps, looked with satirfaction on getting rid of tribes whose worlike propensities would always be a trouble to them, and whose religion would effectually prevent their thorough annalganation with the Empire of Russia. They applied, therefore, some time ago, to the Turkish Government to ask whether it would be willing to receive these fugitives if they came. to ask whether it would be willing to receive these fugitives if they came. The Turks accorded to the request, upon the condition, however, that the immigration took place gradually and did not commence till the fine season had set in. The number who were expected to arrive under these circumstances was $43,000 or 50,000. Even this would be as much as a large army, and it was certainly only ordinary prudence to stipulate that even this number should only come gradually.

to stipulate that even this number should only come gradually.

The immigrants, however, with whose multitudes Asia Minor is now being overwhelmed reach in reality the enermous number of 300,000 persons. All that vast crowd of neen, women, and children appear to be hovering on and children appear to be hovering on the Circassian coast of the Euxine, and catching at every opportunity to pour over its inhospitable waters to Trobizond. The Spanish Dramatic Company is working (as the Spaniards say) at the Rosario theatre with great success. We see an apology from one gentleman to any one if no supply of transport can be found sufficient for the occasion. little coasting vessel seems to be eagerly seized upon, and the unfortunate emigrants crowd upon every craft that comes in their way in numbers which defy any precautions for health or safety. The consequence is that a few days' sail seems to concentrate all the notorious horrors of the Middle Passage. Out of 600 of these unhappy beings only 370 survived after a four or five days' sail. Women suffer the pangs of childbirth in the open air, with scarce clothes for themselves and none for their wr. ched infants, and dead and dying men lie thick upon the exposed decks. Those, again, who survive the sea passage land to meet almost equal sufferings; and, to judge by our Correspondent's description, it must be almost better to linger destitute on the shores of the Caucasus than to be smothered with disease in a to be smothered with disease in a Turkish town. There is no accommo-

MASSACIRE AT FORT PILLOW. Additional Particulars of the Barbarhies Perpetrated.

The Illinois "State Journal" has the following particulars of the massacre, from an officer on board a gunbont which accompanied the transport Platte Valley to Fort Pillow under a flag of Thirty-six white men and twentyone col-red were the remnant left of 600 troops, saving the 40 prisoners taken rivay. The attack was made just before sunrise—the fort being occupied by nearly 300 white men (13th Tennessee. Cavalry) and the rest black (8th I Jnited States Artillery. The fight lasted until five o'cluck p.m., the garrison refusing to surrender, when treacher-pusly, and in true chiralize style, the enemy, under flag of truce, moved up t'ac defiles in the rear of the fort and stormed it. Up to this time only eight or ten had been hurt, but now the mas-Thirty-six white men and twentystormed it. Up to this time only eight or ten had been hurt, but now the massacre begun, our men having thrown down their arms and given themselves up. They pleaded to be treated as priand the process to be treated as pre-viled and cursed them, pursuing their bloody work, robbing our men of mo-ney and valuables, and thrusting their hands into the pockets and breasts of our soldiers to be sure they had given up all. After all the white men, except those on board our boat, were killed. those on board our boat, were killed, the few negroes left were ordered to bury the dead in the trenches. They were then made to dig a ditch for themselves, and were shot and threwn into it. The following morning the shooting of negroes was resumed, and many who escaped the night before were now discovered, and met their those on board our boat, were killed

The rebel surgeons offered to do something for our wounded, but their officers came and forbade it, at the same officers came and forbade it, at the same time shooting down some negroes who had ventured into the quarters. It is byond question that the few suffered to live were spared as a show of humanity and these were so mutilated that nearly all the wounds will prove mortal. Eight died before we reached Gairo, and not more than ten will probably survive of the remainder. Lieutenant Libbeth is already dead. We left Captain Porter and the adjutant almost dying. The wounds are all of the most terrible and fatal character. Some of the sabre gashes were frightful. Eyes were shot out, heads laid open till the brains oozed out, and many were shot through both out, and many were shot through both lungs. Most of the wounds were in the bowels and lungs, and some of the men had from five to nine wounds. The legs of one man were both crushed, and one boy, not yet fifteen, had both legs and his back broken. Scarcely any had less than two or three severe wounds.

There is no doubt that the murderers intended every one should die. Nearly all the wounded could talk when first brought on board, and they all told the same story. There were no contradictions in their statements, and every one assured me he was unwounded when he gave himself up a prisoner. The hospital was fired, and the sick and wounded burned without mercy, and one sick man brought in the boat, who had escaped, told me himself that the rebels came to his tent and deliberately set fire to it. The men all assayed us that Chalmers did not take more than forty prisoners—some thought there There is no doubt that the murderers Turkish town. There is no accommodation whatever for them on their of arrival, and they only crowd together to generate diseases and to create a famine.

The Turkish Government are behaving in the emergency with an energy and a spirit which does them great of create. The first thing to be done, of course, is to provide provide transport, and to get the unfortunate exiles removed from their miserable destitution on the Gircassian shore. Congregated as they are described without shelter and with bare food, there is danger of positive violence, breaking out among them. The Russians have been asked to open their ports for their departure, and so to save them waiting on the open beach for a coasting vessel; and it will be hard if they can refuse this poor consolation to a people whom they have trampled on with customary mercilessness for a most questionable purpose. Next in importance comes the provision for them on their arrival in Turkey, and this is for the moment as difficult a problem as the other. It appears that it will cost the forman a million sterling to provide for the permanent catablishment of the immigrants. There ought, however, ultimately to be no difficulty in usefully dispersing 300,000 men over the Turkish Empire in Asia. There are vast plains of fettile land in Asia Minor and some other portions of the Asiatie seen in the fort, and other evidences of the brutality and findish barbaritior uruguay for orders, with salted hides, perpetrated by the murderers of Fort Pillow. Chalmers told us that Forrest was back on the hill—if so, he was probably wounded, as he did not show himself. Generals Lee and Faulkner were with Chalmers.

The massacre stands without a parallel—wayle early size no adequate and the parallel—wayle early size no adequate 400 bordelesas tallow 850

THE BOMBAY

Her Majesty's steamship Bombay, ying for some time past as Gillingham, is under orders to make her trial trip to-day, before leaving for the westward, where she is to embark Rear-Admiral the Hoo, C. G. J. B. Elliot, C.B., as the new commander in chief for the S. E. coast of America. We are sorry to find that small pox has shown itself on board this ship. Two cases sent to hospital at Chatham from the hulk, before the ships company "turned over," have been returned within the last few days as cured. Since their going on board the ship two fresh cases have broken out, and have been sent to the hospital. It is, therefore, to be hoped that the authorities will not allow the Bombay to leave England for such a station while there is any doubt of disease existing on board. of disease existing on board.

that the visite will not pay over 20 per cent.

There was a good deal done in exchange to day on England, and rates seem falling. Some £30,000 was passed at 50d. We learn that the River Plate Bank is drawing at 494d.

Business is at present rather dull Importers are beginning to be very particular as to whom they sell. Exporters can find but little produce. Dry hides, or in fact anything, to the States at present are dangerous, owing to the premium on gold, the enormous rate of exchange and the prophect of new duties. In our money market there is a feverish feeling, and the probabilities are that the banks with have to raise the rates of interest on both paper and gold. Notwithstanding the number of drawers, exchange aperates to be noing down.

We hear that the Maua Bank will shortly open a branch bank in Gualeguaychu, which is the largest and most important town in that province. We have no doubt that it will be found of the greatest convenience to the place,
