THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1864.

Grand Immigration Project.

Deputies Ormiz, Zuviria and Granel have introduced to Congress a bill to provide funds for bringing out a large number of immigrants from Europe. As it is probably with the approval of Government, and offers many advantages, without excessive outlay, we have every confidence in its being passed. The chief provisions are as follow:—

1st. To emit 2,000,000 dols. (17 to the doubloon) in Public Bonds bearing interest of 6 per cent per annum and 1 per cent amortization, payable out of the general funds of the Republic, and redeemable at 75 per cent of their expressed value.

2nd. To bring out 1,000 families of the farming class from Europe, to supply them with provisions, animals and farming implements, during one year; to build houses and a school for each colony. To purchase two small steamers for navigating the Vermejo and Rio Negro.

3rd. To maintain friendly relations with the Indians, and colonize the points indicated by Government.

4th. The National Government shall send to Europe a proper agent to foment immigration from Germany and other countries.

5th. Of the first families brought out 200 shall be settled on the left bank of the Rio Negro in Patagonia, and 200 near the old redoubt of El Rey on the right bank of the Parana. The remainder shall be fixed on the island of Chacabuco of the Rio Negro, and in some part of the Rio Vermejo to be indicated by Government.

6th. Each immigrant family must comprise 5 individuals, of which two able-bodied, and will receive 2 oxen, 1 horse, 3 fanges* of wheat, two of potatoes, one of maize, two ploughs, and provisions for 12 months. Native families settling near the colonies will receive the same. Each family shall get a grant of 24 cuadras (80 acres) and for ever, and this as well as all products shall be free of taxes for 20 years.

7th. After four years the colonists shall begin to reimburse these expenses, paying to Government one-fifth of the amount until satisfied.

8th. The letters, farming implements, &c., of the colonists, shall be conveyed gratis by the Government steamers.

9th. The towns of Patagonia and Bahia Blanca shall be declared seaports for foreign trade, and custom-houses there established.

10th. Merchandise imported on the rivers Negro, Colorado, and Vermejo, for use of the colonists, shall be duty free during ten years.

11th. The colonists of the colonies on the Rio Negro shall be quartered a military force of 400 cavalry and 100 infantry, to protect the colony.

12th. The garrisons shall be only 200 men each. These soldiers shall be enlisted for a fixed term, and not obliged to serve on the expiration.

13th. Those soldiers with families shall be allowed all the benefits given to the immigrants, if on the expiration of their service they settle down there.

14th. To facilitate colonization, the Executive shall station 1500 men of the National Guard on the island Chacabuco. In like manner, the present frontier forces shall be distributed in three 'corps d'armee,' occupying Salinas Grandes, Rio Quinto, and Cerro Nevada.

15th. All lands annexed or conquered beyond the present frontier shall be declared National property, and made subject to the Bonds above mentioned.

16th. Friendly Indians shall receive lands, in the ratio of 20 cuadras per family; also provisions for twelve months.

17th. The National Government shall render an annual account of the colonies and their expenses.

*A fanga is a measure of about 100 lbs.

THE SAN JUAN MINING CO.
In yesterday's paper we reported of that were already known to the public, and it was anticipated the shareholders in this city would make a vigorous resistance before surrendering an enterprise they had themselves mainly created, and yielding to the haughty intimation of one whom they had raised to his present position. It was indeed well for Mr. Rickard that he had not to face the angry looks of the foreign and native capitalists who had lent their funds out of compliance to President Mitre, and now seemed to regard themselves as "taken in."

But there are some points in the history of this Company both amusing and unprecedented. When the glowing accounts of some American sailors were published in this paper, three years ago, respecting these mines, Mr. Baschenthal conceived the idea of trying the speculation, and despatched a miner to study the locality: the report was unfavourable. Subsequently Governor Sarmiento invited Mr. Rickard from Chile, and our countryman represented the value of the mines as almost fabulous. The citizens of San Juan were unable to make up a capital of $22,000, and solicited aid from Buenos Ayres. General Mitre gave a large party and lent his gun 500 shares of the shares. The first call was paid. Major Rickard went to England and brought out machinery. The second call was paid, and the shares were set going. Then came a third call, and simultaneously the news that the results far surpassed the most sanguine expectations, and the San Juan shareholders are unable to comply with the call.

Mining companies are proverbially perilous, depending on the good or bad result of the works; but here we have an enterprise signally successful, and disinterested with bankruptcy. Mr. Rickard went to England and brought out machinery. The second call was paid, and the shares were set going. Then came a third call, and simultaneously the news that the results far surpassed the most sanguine expectations, and the San Juan shareholders are unable to comply with the call.

Many will think that the San Juan shareholders were very 'soft' in their arrangement with Mr. Rickard, and that the latter took an unfair advantage. But the case is so extraordinary, that it may be there was no other cause from bankruptcy, although the benefit seems to be entirely for the engineers. The Buenos Ayres shareholders complain of no accounts being passed, and this is important: they think the San Juan directors should have sold out of their position, but it is doubtful whether the insolvent shares would be taken up in Buenos Ayres, at any price.

The meeting on Tuesday was the first in which the shareholders met to be entirely for the engineers. If they accept Mr. Rickard's offer it must be at a risk. To go to law with him is to endanger great works, and a crisis comes. If they wind up the Company and auction off the machinery and works at Hilarito is to throw them away. Meantime Mr. Rickard, who is now the Director of San Juan, will probably make a further call, and the question will arise whether our citizens must pay it. If not, he will be at a stand-still with his shares, and the shareholders will be with them some ten thousand dollars at the worth of hats and cravats. The robbery, at Mr. Rickard's quanta, of jewellery it is said was effected by one of the servants of the house.

A new native bank has been established under the name of 'Casa de Credito'; the directors are very good countrymen—Ochoa, Zamarrin, Segui, Yturraspe and A. Lanas; the object is to lend money, discount bills, and in fact everything pertaining to a bank save the right of emission. It would be a pity if the directors of this bank were not to be entirely for the engineers.

The assignee of F. L. Martinez has at last declared a dividend, but they don't say how much it is; creditors, however, are not called to call and receive it. No $250,000.

We hear from the Rev. Mr. Cullen that Mr. Bannan who collected subscriptions in this country some years ago, so far from being dead and buried in Montevideo, is alive and well in the United States, and has been received into the Trappist order in Kentucky.

NEWS FROM EUROPE.
The Corps Legislatif was closed on Saturday, when the President, the Duke de Morny, delivered a speech strongly advocating moderation and justice in the expression of opinion as the most certain mode of serving the cause of liberty. The address was well received, and the deputies separated with cries of "Vive l'Empereur."

The security which had previously characterised the sittings of the London Conference was continued at the meeting held on Saturday, to the exclusion of the public from the only source of authentic information upon a subject in which all Europe is so deeply interested. Still, circumstances occurred which are eagerly seized as affording some slight indication of the direction events are taking. The Paris correspondent of the Times affirms the complete success of the negotiations which have been carried on since the suspension of the Conference, and looks upon the question as greatly simplified and the main difficulties as removed by the concurrence of the four leading powers in a plan for the adjustment of the Danish difficulty. It is said that England, France, Russia, and Sweden all acknowledge the inadmissibility of the treaty of 1852 as the basis of new negotiations, and concur in the opinion that Schleswig must be divided according to the national character of its inhabitants. This will give the southern portion, in which the German element prevails, to Germany, and the northern, which is almost exclusively Danish, to Denmark. With regard to the intermediate districts, where the population is so mixed that it is difficult to determine the prevailing element, or Danes preponderate, it is proposed to assign the people themselves, by voting, to determine to which Power they will be attached.

The Emperor accompanied by Prince Gortschakoff and his private secretary will pay a visit to Germany on the 6th of June. A rumour has prevailed in Paris that the Porte is about to employ coercive measures against Prince Couza. This however, is scarcely in harmony with the latest news from Constantinople, which says that the Conference sitting in this city on the question of the Principality continues its deliberations without at all noticing the late events at Bucharest.

The result of the voting in the Principality upon the new Constitution proposed by Prince Couza has been the adoption of that constitution by 713,245 votes against 57 opposed to it. From Spottsylvania, where Gen Lee is posted, to Richmond, there are nearly 50 miles of the same difficult ground to pass through.

On the evening of the 13th the Confederate army was still in its position a little north of Spottsylvania Court-house, behind breastworks, fresh brushwood, and a marsh.

The New York correspondent of the 'Daily News' says Grant's losses during the eight days' fighting have now been ascertained, and they number between 20,000 and 25,000 men, wounded, and missing, and this writer guesses that those of the South have been greater. He says Maryland has been almost denuded of regular troops, and as he writes himself, Sigel's corps have been largely drawn out, making an addition to Grant's forces of over 50,000 men. The militia has been retained at New York, as there was reason to fear another Irish outbreak, in case Grant met with a reverse and the militia had to be withdrawn to aid him, though the manner in which the riot of last year was suppressed, is said to have made a wholesome impression. The 'Daily News' correspondent says that 800 of them were killed during the 'emancipation' or died of injuries received.—'Album,' May 20.

The engagement of Heligoland—Danish Account.

Copenhagen, May 17.—The following report of the naval engagement of the Danish North Sea squadron with the Austro-Prussian on the 9th inst., off Heligoland, has just been issued by the Ministry of Marine:—

After the frigate Jylland had joined the frigate Niels Juel and the corvette Heimdal, on the 6th inst., off Christiania, the united squadron stood southwards, under command of Captain E. Tuensoen, who hoisted his pendant on the Niels Juel, to cruise off Heligoland by order of the Ministry.

At 8 a.m. on the 8th, while standing towards Red Cliff, a steam frigate came in sight. The Jylland steamed closer to look after her, and returned at twelve with intelligence that she was the English frigate Aurora, Captain M'Cintock, who had been in company with the combined Austro-Prussian squadron the preceding day. Our ships got up steam and stood southwards, with Captain Tuensoen at the helm, and the Aurora was discovered to the south-south-west, at 12.30, in case we should be compelled to put in there, the squadron stood off for the south-west under canvas for Heligoland.

At 12.45 a.m. smoke was discovered to the south-south-west, and at 12.50 we had the hostile squadron in view, consisting of two Austrian frigates and three small Prussian gunboats, bearing down towards us, the frigates with their topgallants lowered and colours flying from the masthead. Our ships received the signals, "Steam up," "Pail sails," and "Prepare for action."

The enemy's ships were meantime within about a mile and a half, the Schwarzenberg leading, the Radetzky a little behind, and the Prussian gunboats bringing up the rear. The scene of action was south-west of Heligoland, some ten miles off the island; the weather fine, with a light breeze from the east.

The Schwarzenberg now opened fire with his rifled guns, and, shortly after, the Aurora, tried to cross over to the rear. The scene of action was south-west of Heligoland, some ten miles off the island; the weather fine, with a light breeze from the east.

The squadron had now come nearer, steering opposite courses, north and south. The Schwarzenberg received our first fire at about five or six cables' length; speed was lessened, and at a quarter to two the engagement became general.

The Russian gunboats had not followed the manoeuvre of the Austrians, but running before them in a south-westerly direction, endeavoured to fire our ships' bows. The distance—about two miles—was, however, far too great for their fire to have any effect.

Our line having passed the Austrian frigates, we now turned to the starboard so as to separate the Austrian from the Prussian vessels. To prevent this the latter pushed forward, while the Austrians tried to re-establish the line giving us the opportunity of delivering several full broadsides into the hostile frigates. After this last manoeuvre the Austrian and our squadron ran some distance abreast, steering gradually to the north, and the engagement continued, and the gunboats more towards the centre. The Niels Juel engaged the Schwarzenberg, while the Jylland took the Radetzky.

The line was well kept, and our vessels able to get excellent aim, especially as the distance was gradually reduced to two or three cables' length. The fire of the Austrians was particularly good and evenly maintained, in spite of the broadsides they had to sustain. The gunboats were at this time, as in fact during the whole engagement, at too great a distance from their fire to produce any effect.

Towards half past three, after the fight had lasted nearly two hours, the force of the Schwarzenberg was seen to be on fire, and smoke was observed issuing from the gun ports, while her fire perceptibly slackened. Our efforts hereupon increased, and our fire was delivered with excellent effect.

By four p.m. the Schwarzenberg's whole fire rigging, from below the top and upwards, was in flames, and she seemed to abandon the engagement. She rounded at full speed for the Southern Roads, off Heligoland, followed by the Radetzky, which tried to cover her course with very great effect. During this part of the affair we succeeded in delivering a raking broadside at rather close quarters. Our vessels pursued the enemy as rapidly as possible, making use of their bow guns, until half past four, when they were clear upon within four miles of Heligoland, and we were compelled to abandon the pursuit in order not to run into neutral waters.

Our squadron lay over to the north-east for some time, observing the enemy. The Austrian frigates and the gunboats anchored at the southern point of Heligoland, and let off their steam. The fore rigging of the Schwarzenberg was shortly afterwards on fire.

During the entire engagement the English frigate Aurora was riding at anchor off the south of Heligoland. Our squadron stood east towards the evening, and left for the north, at 2.30 next morning in consequence of a despatch from the Ministry of Marine.

As previously stated, our loss in this engagement, so far as our ships were concerned, was not considerable. Our ships were 14 killed and 51 wounded, while we are informed, upon the authority of an eye-witness, who was at Heligoland, that the Schwarzenberg alone had 130 killed and 100 wounded, and that during our side the engagement have our ships been out of service.

An American View of the House of Commons.

The House of Commons is a most surprising place to an American. Legislative assemblies being associated in his mind with the vast and superb amphitheatres in which the national business is transacted at Washington, he is struck with astonishment when he is ushered into the room where the Parliament of the United Kingdom assemble, that it is the most insignificant of all there is no preparation here for a people to enter, and see and hear what is going on. One who desires to enter must have a friend at Court. This friend must put his name on a list for some day thereafter, at which time the candidate for admission must be present at or near 4 p.m. when Parliament meets, or his place will pass to the next on the list.

A small open hall, or room. You give your card to the door-keeper, in whose hand you are pained to observe a whole pile of cards which must be delivered before you to the various members who represent the throng of patient spirits outside. With this throng you then take your stand under the aggressive protection of a baillif, whose business it is to push each patient breast, at least once, and tell it to "stand back." At last you see your member coming out at a single door, you fly to him, and, fainting on his breast, are borne to the strangers' gallery, or, if you are lucky, to the inclusive down on the floor. There are nearly six millions of people in the United Kingdom, and of these 300 may get into the galleries, &c., of the House at one time—including the reporters' gallery. Ladies are not permitted to sit in the House of Commons. Nevertheless, if you are far sighted, you may see up near the ceiling something that looks like a tapestry, and have the pleasure of seeing it with each other from one end of the House to the other. On these members sit close together, without table, desk or anything else before them. Not a book or a newspaper can be seen.

And as they sit with their hats on, they resemble nothing so much as a Quaker meeting. Here doubtless the Quaker idea originated. As with their only his hat off, and when he has finished claps it on again with enthusiasm. (Indeed the devotion of an Anglianism at all times to a good and cruel stove-pipe hat is that of a mother for her beloved child.) On Monday evening I was one of the lucky, and got into one of the inclusive seats of the door these stood upon each side of the door by which the members entered. Here my arm rested uncomfortably upon a carved dragon, which might have been very agreeable to the eye alone. My neighbor just in front of me must rest his on a couchant lion, and the terminal sculpture is rampant unicorn. On the opposite side there are a sphinx-like lion, and a lion rampant, to match the unicorn on our side—a lion, by the way, so exactly like that sculptured upon Punch, that I think it certain that Punch copied it. These carved beasts on each side have a laughable correspondence with Palmerston and Disraeli, who sit opposite each other in the same way at the other end of the room "fighting for the crown." The recent blance is heightened by that remarkable lock of hair which, on the bald space 'twixt the side locks of Disraeli's head lies stiffly down, called like a bush made (as the Liberals say) in respect, but when attacking the Government, very like the horn of the unicorn afore-said.

LATEST FROM MONTVIDEO.

Mrs. N. Reyes gave an evening party last week all the fashion of the Mount attended. Dr. Castellanos then gave, a few days after, a large party at the English in the city were, and dancing was kept up until 5 o'clock in the morning. The Victoria alone is in such a scandalous state that only the most select young fellows can attempt to walk on it, as some places have to be passed only by a good running leap; the holes in the Montevideo mules are awful. Owing to the revolution the greatest imaginable number of negro horses are found in every quarter of the camp, and a correspondent of the "Reform" suggests a very excellent plan for their capture, namely that the negroes in each partido have until the 1st January next to present their marks to an agent to be appointed for the purpose, and have them published. The little Glasgow steamer, Flying Fish, only 45 tons, which arrived the other day, is to be sold by auction this week.

Two of Flores' officers were arrested in the suburbs of Montevideo, but having asked permission of Government to remain, as they did not intend to go back to Flores, they were allowed to enter the city. President Aguirre's Ministers have, in consequence of the new demands of Flores, all resigned. Sr. Arcega gave a splendid breakfast on board the Fairy, on the 17th July—great speeches, &c.

RAILWAY TO ZARATE.

To the Editors of The Standard. Gentlemen, We, the undersigned, observe with great pleasure that you ably observe, through the columns of your popular journal, the advancement of this important town, by the construction of the Northern railway to Zarate, instead of stopping at the Estancia Campana. Animate with the most eternal gratitude we offer you the thanks of the town and partido, and beg you will continue to support so reasonable and important a project, which will tend to the development of several rising towns in the province of Buenos Aires.

Zarate, by reason of its splendid topographical situation, its deep and convenient anchorage and harbor, is destined to become the great Northern market of this province. In conclusion we salute you most cordially and remain: Manuel J. de la Torre, Constantino Silvano, Federico Basallano, Natividad Matos, Manuel Mendoza, Juan Angu, D. S. Guimaraes, E. La Torre, Eusebio Rolon, Francisco C. Silvano, Sebastian Arana, Eduardo Lopez, Sr. de la Torre, Angel Calderon, Aristides Olivero, Angel Fugazari, Juan C. CONGRES.

There are several important matters at present before the National Congress. The note of Sr. Rojas, calling the Government to account about the neglected state of the frontiers, has been sent to the Committee of Petition for the Senate. A bill proposing to pay 75,000 dollars in Public Bonds to Dr. Illoquey, in satisfaction of his claims relative to the French colony of Corrientes, has also been sent to committee. The concession for telegraph wires between this city and Montevideo has been passed by the Senate, only suppressing the names Proudfoot and Grey, so that Government may contract with any parties. It was reported last year that Major Richard had made a proposal, also Baron Muench the line will be terminated from Palermo to Colonia, thence onwards. In another column will be found the grand immigration project before the Deputies. Messrs. Torrent, Bittaldi, and Grand, have presented a bill for a treaty ballast, as in France. Only one treaty was made between 18 and 40 years will be on this roll, to serve for 7 years; the contingent shall be as follows: Buenos Ayres 300, Entre Rios 100, Cordoba 150, Corrientes 100, Santiago 100, Santa Fe 50, San Juan 50, San Luis 50, San Pedro 50, San Rafael 50, the other four provinces, 75 each total, 1800. Besides pay a bounty of 200 silver dollars. On Monday the Minister of the Interior requested the Deputies to reconsider their decision respecting the British claim (Sultana), but it was negative. The concession for steam navigation of the Upper Uruguay was passed.

LOCAL EVENTS.

El Buco.—The traction-engine of this name, with three wagons, has arrived, and will be ready in 15 days to make its trial trip. It cost £200, and will draw 30 tons of merchandise at four miles per hour. It is not of the Boydell patent, not having its own rails. We have had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Beare and the engineer, who promise to give us further particulars.

July Festival.—On the 8th (to-morrow) at noon, fireworks and merry-go-rounds for children in the Plaza. Music till 2 p.m. At night, illuminations and fireworks, music from 6 to 8.

On the 9th—To Deum and review procession of Corpus Christi. At 2 p.m. Mr. Wells will go up in his balloon 1600 feet, and come down in a parachute. At 7.30 illuminations and fireworks.

The rise in price to-day was attributed to the bad news from Montevideo, as it was freely stated on the Bole that Mr. Thornton had told an English gentleman on Tuesday evening in Montevideo that peace was out of the question, and that the Government exists as to the future complications in the River Plate, and the Balle ruled the market. People however cannot be too wary as it is to be seen that two brokers to drive patrons down below 29 whenever they wish. Some English brokers we hear have large orders to buy for the end of August at 29 1/2, but they could not get at that figure to-day. The new native Banking Company was greatly talked about. Change to day: people think that it is stated more as a pawn-off than anything else, and merchants say will some reason that if it is intended as a bank more money is required, and the manager must be a man well and favorably known. We like to see plenty of Banks, but English merchants attach great importance to the number and responsibility of the directors. We notice the arrival of a cargo of American flour to Lopes and Co. For many years such imports invariably resulted in loss, but owing to the very high price of wheat it is very possible that this cargo will sell at a profit. The sales of land in Rosario are becoming of the very highest importance; yesterday we heard of a sale of estancia sold the other day at 12,000 ptes.; the land lies within a few leagues of Rosario.

PRIGHTS.

The Oldenburg schooner Albert to sail in the Rio Negro salt at 4 p.m. this day. Ships seem to be scarce in Montevideo, as we perceive Messrs. Zimmermann, Fairs and Co. advertise for a vessel to carry 300 tons of bones and bone ash to Cork or Falmouth for orders. What use our ship captains and ship brokers about that they do not at once apply.

Messrs. Hugh Bangs & Co.'s circular dated in Buenos Ayres, 12th April last, on the system of selling wool by sample in Havre, has elicited some very strong comments from the wool brokers and merchants of that port, who charge the arrangements of Buenos Ayres with the greatest carelessness in classifying the wool. They say that in Havre it is not the custom (as is alleged) to sell sales of wool by samples of two or three pounds taken from each bale. That the system adopted in Havre is better and preferable to that of any other market. Buyers of wool in Havre never agree as to price until the bales are opened and thoroughly examined, and compared with the samples. This is the invariable rule in the Havre wool market in consequence of the great mixture of wools in Buenos Ayres and the rather negligent classification by some of the exporters. The wool brokers of Havre request the barrangers to be more careful, and then complaints and recommitments will be avoided. The stock of wool in Havre was very heavy, amounting to six thousand bales, from the River Plate, but the market was very firm.

The stock of River Plate dry hides in New York at latest dates was a little over 300,000, and the market very flat.

Exchange on England closed for the week in Montevideo at 54 1/2 per cent National dollar; on France 83 1/2 per cent.

By latest dates from London we read that the Alabama, when last heard of, (end of March) was at the Cape of Good Hope.

The Entre Rios Government has negotiated a loan with the Baron Maua for 10,000 patas. Dr. Victoria it was who arranged it and received half the above sum with him in part payment. Dr. Montevideo will receive the other half. We have not heard the terms of the loan. The credit of Entre Rios is so good in Rio that the barangers double above amount if required, but as the sum in question was sufficient the commissioners declined the Baron's magnificent offer. We call attention to this loan, as only a little while ago it was stated that the Baron had refused to lend any more money to the Oriental Government, and there were many persons who went so far as to say that the reason why he would not advance more was because he had not to lend. The new loan is a sufficient answer to such statements.
