Our readers will find a full, true and perfect account of the affair from the pen of a Scotta absertiber, in another column. Within the last few days a batch of English and American gequlemen have arrived with an agg, egate capital of over £10 000, all bound for the camp, and with a determination to 'go into sheep."

The 'Tribuna' takes up the cause of the Bank clerks with a real wind would, make one believe all these geotlemen are subscribers. The grist could make the property have got a when their salaries, the Bank clerks have not. We camplyerse' have got a when their salaries, the Bank clerks have not. We think the 'Tribuna' is right, the Bank clerks should get a rise also : in fact, the whole establishment, president, directors, clerks, paper dollars, all should get gat a rise in the right direction, and the sooner the Gasa de alor made gets that rise the better for them and for the whole country.

THE DAILY PRESS

Some people are inclined to laugh at the boasted civilization of the 19th century, as if railways, steam, gas, telegraphs &c. were trifles unworthy of historic note. Yet it may be fairly presumed we are much ahead of all forever ages in useful atts and inventions; and the progress of this century has gone hand-in-hand with an extraordinary development of the newspaper press. Take for instance the 'Times,' one of the greatest institutions on only of England, but of the present day: in 1800 it was a small sheet in only of England, but of the present day: in 1800 it was a small sheet in England has been predigious, especially of late years: in 1851 there were 600 papers in the U. Kingdom, and in 1801 the number reached 1804, doubling in tenyears. Comparing this with the population, and with Argentunestaticies, we find in England a paper for 26,000 inhabitants, while the ratio in this republic shews one for 69,000. If we could quote the circulation the balance would be still more favorable for England, as the 'Times' we calculate must issue more than the united inhabitants, while the ratio in this value of the place its unknown, and the not make a distribution of the place its unknown, and the Oriental part of the place its unknown, and the Oriental bark is fast drifting on to the rocks. The true Brailian on the Oriental bark is fast drifting on to the rocks. The true Brailian of the Oriental bark is fast drifting on to the rocks. The true Brailian of the Oriental bark is fast drifting on to the rocks. The true Brailian of the Oriental bark is fast drifting on to the rocks. The true Brailian of the one will make short work of forces is a General Caldwell, he must be is not a man to desert his colors and hoist his own standard if the comers up upon Netto he will make short work of him.
